Four Good Men, All Dry
Helping the Farmer
Just a Little Usury
Lord Terrington's Error

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

HOOVER and Smith, both on a dry platform. Wet Democrats will be told: "Don't worry we don't really mean that dry stuff."

Wet Republicans will be asked: "Have we Republicans ever acted dry? Have you had any trouble getting what you wanted?"

Two dry platforms with a wet understanding in the program.

Democrats want to help farmers and expect farmers to help them. They promise that what the farmers cannot sell in the United States shall be sold abroad. But "the cost of surplus marketing will be put on the commodity."

• • •

THIS means that what it costs to sell surplus products in Europe will be charged to the farmer.

After he has paid his government's charges for foreign marketing, he will agree with the power trust that our government isn't capable or honest enough to engage in business successfully.

• • •

THE Bible warns us against usury, see Deuteronomy xxiii., 21: "Thou shalt not lend upon usury to thy brother; usury of money, usury of victuals, usury of anything that is lent upon usury."

• • •

THAT did not keep big-money gentlemen from raising the price of "call money" in Wall Street to eight per cent yesterday. They may have a private understanding with Providence.

• • •

STRANGELY, eight per cent money did not keep prices from going up. Our laws against usury remind you of prohibition laws. What doesn't suit the big fellows doesn't "go."

• • •

LORD TERRINGTON, British peer, stole $300,000, admits it, and goes to jail for four years. That happens in Britain.

Had the gentleman come to this country and made it $30,000,000 instead of $300,000, he would be on his private car or yacht now, and able lawyers would be denouncing anybody trying to interfere with him.

Or, as Senator Nye puts it, "You can't convict $100,000,000."

• • •

THE Democrats promise to give the Philippine Islands back to the Filipinos, of whom the platform says: "They have succeeded in maintaining a stable government."

The Democrats might give the Philippines to the Japanese. They won't give them to the Filipinos, because the Filipinos couldn't take them.

Those admirable little gentlemen have not "succeeded in maintaining a stable government."

The United States has maintained it for them, which is different.

However, platforms must not be taken too literally.

• • •

SENATOR NORRIS of Nebraska, who forced Congress to admit that the people of the United States might own their own Muscle Shoals plant, is out against the Democratic platform. He doesn't see how any third party could be organized. Which means that he and millions of others that think the farmer has been badly treated intend to remain Republican none the less.

• • •

THE Democratic platform promises to "outlaw war." Women are delighted with that. They hope it will work better than the law to outlaw whisky. That didn't work well, and unfortunately whisky and war are brothers.

To get rid of either you must do more than write words in a platform or law book, YOU MUST CHANGE MEN.

• • •

THE Democratic nomination is a step in the right direction toward tolerance in religious matters. Thomas Jefferson was determined that this government should not support, recognize or discriminate against any religion.

The nomination of Governor Smith is a step toward realization of plans made by those that established this government.

BOY, 10, FIRST VICTIM OF PREMATURE FOURTH

Tiffin, June 30—Ten-year-old Paul Eichenhaller is under a physician's care today, the first Ohio victim of premature Independence day celebration. His lips were torn and his face burned when a pistol cartridge exploded while the boy played late yesterday.

HOUSTON LEFT BEHIND; DEMS FEELING HAPPY

First Ballot Nominations and Easy Platform Adoption Cheer Leaders

NOVEMBER WILL TELL

M'Bride Attacks Smith After Governor's Acceptance Telegram

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
Star Staff Correspondent

Houston, Tex., June 30—The Democrats cleared out of Houston today a lot happier than they ever thought they could be when they came.

Above all the controversy over the prohibition plank, above all the warfare that waged over candidacies, the fact that party leaders chose to dwell upon was that Gov. Al Smith and Senator Joseph T. Robinson had both been nominated on the first ballot; that for the first time since 1882 a Democratic national convention had adopted a platform without a minority report having been submitted; and that for the first time in years the party candidate has been nominated without a serious rift in the party.

They believe that all of this augers well for success this fall. November, of course, will tell whether those hopes are justified. Meanwhile, the Democrats are happy—that is, all save the extreme outer fringe of the party are happy. But as to that, the party leaders lean back upon the paraphrase of an ancient political axiom:

"You can please some of the people some of the time, but you can't please all of the people all of the time."

The principal controversy about the whole convention centered today over whether the party had gone wet or dry in its platform. The platform declaration on prohibition was less than 100 words, yet today, there were scarcely less than 100 different interpretations as to its ultimate effect and meaning.

Satisfactory All Around

The plank criticized the Republicans for not enforcing the prohibitory laws in its first paragraph, and concluded by pledging nominees of the party to "an honest effort to enforce the eighteenth amendment and all other provisions of the federal constitution and all laws enacted pursuant thereto."

This was entirely satisfactory to the radical drys, including such outstanding officials of the Anti-Saloon league as Bishop James Cannon, Jr., who was here to look after just such matters. That is, it was pleasing to them until Governor Smith accepted the nomination given him with the blunt announcement that, while he stood for law enforcement and would honestly try to enforce the prohibitory laws, he nevertheless believed them wrong and hoped to evolve something better than the

GANG LEADER FOILS WOULD-BE ASSASSINS

"Spike" O'Donnell Falls to Ground While Henchmen Fire on Machine

Chicago, June 30—Eddie "Spike" O'Donnell, leader of the notorious O'Donnell gang, was alive today—and smiling—when, by all the rules of gangland, he should be dead.

Spike's execution was attempted last night. He was attacked in typical gangster style as he stood in front of his home on West Sixty-third st. The usual automobile, heavily curtained to shield the identity of the assassins, drove up. Machine guns spit out their venomous volley.

But O'Donnell was not to be caught napping. With the first crack of the gun, he fell prone to the ground. Meanwhile his henchman bodyguards, secreted about the house apparently in anticipation of the attack, opened fire on the gangster car.

Surprised by the swift counter attack, the would-be-assassins lost their range on O'Donnell's form and all their bullets went wild. None of Spike's benchmen could be seen by the attackers. Confused and routed, the gangsters sped away, their deadly mission unfulfilled.

A solemn reminder was the funeral this morning of "Big Tim" Murphy, labor leader and "racketeer," who was shot down in front of his home last Tuesday night.

JURY SELECTED TO HEAR MURDER CASE

State and Defense Complete Arguments; Hearing Starts Monday

Toledo, June 30—With six men and an equal number of women, sworn in as qualified jurors, and opening statements by opposing counsel to the jury completed, the case of Charles (Stanley) Hoppe, 26, alleged self-confessed slayer of Dorothy Sielagowski, 7-year-old Toledo school girl, marked time today as state and defense counsel prepared to go into court Monday with state counsel seeking a first degree murder conviction and the defense striving desperately to save Hoppe from the electric chair.

Assistant Prosecutor Irwin, in his opening statement on behalf of the state yesterday, reviewed purported details of the kidnaping and slaying on the morning of May 29 last.

At the conclusion of Irwin's statement, Larry Bevan, chief of defense counsel, addressed the jury briefly, outlining the accused man's case. Bevan did not dispute Irwin's statement, but stressed the defense contention that the kidnaping and slaying were committed by "a drunken, irresponsible human being who will be left to you for a decision as to what we should do with him."

After the conclusion of opening statements by the state and defense, the jury was taken to the scene of the crime and then dismissed by Common Pleas Judge Charles M. Milroy, until Monday morning, when the taking of testimony in the case will begin.

SIX PERSONS DIE IN TENNESSEE TORNADO

Power Dam Breaks Following Cloudburst; Few Homes Destroyed

Memphis, Tenn., June 30 — Six deaths, several persons injured and hundreds homeless was the toll today of the tornadoes and cloudbursts which swept over Tennessee last night and early today.

Meanwhile, at Cookeville, a wall of water swept down the channel of the Falling Water river when a power dam burst. Few homes were in the path of the water.

Lee Loock, wife and small daughter of Putnam county, drowned while attempting to cross a swollen stream.

Two small children of Solon Bussetty of Putnam county, were also drowned.

John Lewis, deputy sheriff of Nashville, was electrocuted when he stepped on a live wire.

Six persons were injured in Dyer county as result of the storms in the western part of the state last night.

Will Neely and his wife of Maryville were critically injured when their home was blown away.

GRAND JURORS CITE TERRORS TO CHICAGOANS

Find Alliance Between Crime and Politics, Says Special Report

HIT POLICE DEPARTMENT

Urges Department Be Overhauled; Chief Hughes Is Attacked

Chicago, June 30—Chicago, assailed from all sides as the blackest crime ridden city of the United States but valiantly trying to save its reputation, staggered under a new blow today with the publishing of a report of the special grand jury which has investigated crime, corruption, murder, kidnapings and terrorisms which featured the last primary election.

Briefly, the grand jury in its report to Chief Justice William V. Brothers of the criminal court, has found that an alliance does exist between crime, hoodlums, gunmen and politics; that elections have been held under gunfire; that gangs of terrorists have toured wards commanding votes; that ballots have been ruthlessly snatched from boxes; that the voting of whole wards has been crooked and finally that policemen have stood by idly while assassins, ballot thieves and hoodlums have plied their despicable trade.

Overhaul Department

The grand jury recommended that the entire police department be overhauled and that police government should be lifted from the alleged mire in which it is now caught.

The grand jury was summoned to investigate political crimes and particularly the murder of Octavius Granady, ward committeeman opponent of "Boss" Morris Eller of the "bloody twentieth" ward, who was shot down on the street as he supervised his campaign last election day. Witnesses told the grand jury the murderers were riding in an automobile bearing the banners of Eller.

Grand juries impaneled to conduct lengthy investigations should be permit-

BALLOON RACE GETS OFF AT DETROIT

Twenty-five Planes Also Start in Ford Reliability Tour

Detroit, July 30—The air olympics, Detroit's greatest aviation spectacle, featuring the start of the national air tour and the ascent of 12 giant bags in the Gordon Bennett international balloon race got under way today.

Twenty-five of the country's best commercial airplanes representing 14 aircraft companies are competing in the air tour for the Edsel Ford reliability trophy. The planes will cover a 6,300-mile route in 15 states.

Detroit's greatest day in aviation was to be climaxed by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who is scheduled to fly this afternoon with members of the first pursuit group of Selfridge Field during the program.

Colonel Lindbergh is due to arrive from New York accompanied by Capt. Emilio Carranza, Mexican ace, who recently failed to make a non-stop flight from Mexico City to Washington.

The planes of the tour fleet hopped off at 10 a. m. Eastern standard time. The balloonists wind up the day. Between these events were staged the Selfridge field air circus, flying exhibitions of the Boys' national model airplane contest.

Preparations have been made to handle from 100,000 to 150,000 persons at the airport during the day, and auto parking for 40,000 cars has been provided.

J. J. DUGGER BUYS MARION BUILDING

Local Man Completes Transaction for Purchase from Columbus Realty Firm

Sale of the Marion building on South Main st. to John J. Dugger, 510 East Church st., was announced today by B. R. Felt of the Felt & Felt Realty Co. The transaction was completed yesterday. The amount of money involved in the sale was not announced.

The building was purchased by Mr. Dugger from the Knox Realty Co. of Columbus.

According to Mr. Felt no other property was involved in the transaction, the sale being for cash. The sale included the building and the lot on which the building stands. The lot is said to be approximately 180 feet deep and only the half facing on South Main st. is covered by the building.

Built Six Years Ago

The building was originally owned by Dr. A. A. Starner, who built it about six years ago. It was then known as the Starner building.

The Marion building is one of the most modern structures in the city. It is four stories in height, has a full basement and is strictly fireproof.

The general offices and the electric appliance store of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co. occupy the greater portion of the building.

The sale of 432 acres of farm land owned by Mr. Dugger near Carey was also announced today. The purchaser was G. A. Culler of Carey. The farm sale was also handled by Felt & Felt.

OFFICIALS WILL FILE CHARGE IN SHOOTING

Decision Made After Conference; Former Wife Starts Suit

A charge of shooting with intent to kill will be filed against John Mahaffey, held in connection with the wounding of Raymond Quigley last Wednesday night, late this afternoon or Monday morning, it was announced today by Police Prosecutor Carter Patton and Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann today following a conference with Chief of Police Thompson at police headquarters, at which several witnesses were questioned by officials.

An affidavit charging him with nonsupport was filed against Mahaffey in municipal court this morning by his former wife, Irene Mahaffey. The affidavit charges that Mahaffey had failed to support the two children, John, 13, and Cleatha, 11, since May 11. It is expected he will be arraigned on both charges at the same time.

There were no new developments in the case, Chief Thompson said this morning. A careful check is being made by the police of the story told by Mahaffey of his whereabouts on Wednesday night. Mahaffey, who was recently divorced from his wife, admitted being in the vicinity of his home on Wednesday night, but said he left 15 minutes before the shooting took place.

A general denial of having done the shooting was made by Mahaffey to Chief of Police Thompson and City Solicitor George Goran, Thursday afternoon.

LESLIE SMITH FEARED LOST IN ARKANSAS

Regarded As One of Best "Bad Weather" Fliers in Mail Service

WILL USE DIRIGIBLE

Entire Countryside Scoured in Search; Phones and Radio Commandeered

St. Louis, June 30—The Robertson Aircraft Corp., here instituted one of the greatest searches in local aviation history today in a desperate attempt to locate Leslie H. Smith, 23-year-old air mail pilot missing since he left Little Rock, Ark., at 7:10 Thursday night.

Every available pilot was gathered at the airport here this morning, and each was assigned a definite territory to cover in the intensive search for the airman. At least 30 airplanes had started in the search.

Major Frank Robertson, president of the aircraft corporation, announced a $500 reward to the one locating the missing flier. Robertson also announced he would request Col. John A. Paegelow, of Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., to send a dirigible into the territory to aid in the search.

USE DIRIGIBLE

Five Observers To Be Carried in Search for Missing Flier

Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., June 30—Col. John A. Paegelow, commander of Scott Field here, announced today he would take out a dirigible to aid in the search for Leslie H. Smith, missing 23-year-old air mail pilot.

Paegelow announced he would carry five observers in the flight. He said the use of the dirigible would materially aid the hunt for the missing flier, as the searchers could hover close to the ground in their efforts to find the missing air man.

Smith was rated as one of the best "bad weather pilots" in the air mail service, Robertson said.

One report has been received here that Smith was heard flying over Hunter, Mo., shortly before 9 o'clock Thursday night, but all efforts to locate him in the 120-mile stretch between here and that point were unavailing.

Every telephone exchange in southeastern Missouri has been notified of the missing flier and asked to provide the subscribers with a description of the flier and his plane. The radio stations have joined in the hunt by broadcasting facts about the missing flier.

Several planes entered the search late yesterday, but were forced to return here on account of darkness.

New Schedule Drawn Up for Young People's Union Servic

PROGRAM ADOPTED BY NINE CHURCHES

IN EFFECT SUNDAY

Societies of Three Churches To Take Part in Each Weekly Service

That more churches may be represented in each Sunday night young people's union services program an entire new schedule of services for the summer months has been drawn up and adopted by representatives of the nine church societies taking part.

Harold Patrick, adult adviser and former president of the Marion County Council of Religious Education, is the author and sponsor of the plan.

While the young people's union service will be held at the same place as the union service each Sunday night, young people from three churches, instead of one, will be given an opportunity of taking part in the program.

The young people's service each Sunday night will be divided into three parts, worship, music and lesson study, and each division on each Sunday night will be under direction of a different group.

Organize Union

Mr. Patrick further announced that in connection with the union program, young people's union of the nine local churches will organize into a city young people's church union which will operate with business sessions and social functions in winter as well as with union services during the summer months.

The new plan is to go into effect Sunday night when young people of the nine churches included in the union service program will hold their meeting at 7 o'clock at Calvary Evangelical church. Young people of Trinity Baptist Church will have charge of the worship period, while the lesson study will be under direction of the leagute of Epworth M. E. church and music will be furnished by the young people's body from Central Christian church.

Young people from societies of the following churches will take part, First Presbyterian, Trinity Baptist, Epworth and Prospect Street M. E., First Reformed, Central Christian, Salem and Calvary and First United Brethren churches.

Program Completed

The complete program is as follows: Sunday, July 8, young people's union service at Prospect Street M. E. church with Epworth M. E. societies in charge of the worship, First Presbyterian young people in charge of music and lesson study direction of Central Christian young people; July 15, meeting at Trinity Baptist Church, worship by Central Christian, music by Prospect Street M. E. and lesson by First Presbyterian young people, July 22, meeting at First Reformed church, worship by First Presbyterian, music by First Reformed and lesson by Prospect Street M. E. young people; July 29, no meeting on account of Chautauqua services at Garfield park; Aug 5, meeting at Salem Evangelical church, worship by Prospect Street M. E., music by Calvary Evangelical and lesson by First Reformed young people.

Aug. 12, meeting at Central Christian church, worship by First Reformed music by First United Brethren and lesson by Calvary Evangelical young people; Aug 19, meeting at Epworth M. E. church, worship by Calvary Evangelicau, music by Epworth M. E. and lesson by First United Brethren young people; Aug 26, meeting at First United Brethren church, worship by First United Brethren, music by Salem Evangelical and lesson by Prospect Street M. E. young people, and Sept. 2, the closing union meeting for the year, service at First Presbyterian church with worship by Prospect Street M. E., music by Trinity Baptist and lesson by Salem Evangelical young people.

All services, throuhout the summer, will start at 7 o'clock.

A Happy Nation

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. EARL L. HOLLIDAY
Pastor, Emmanuel Baptist Church

Text: "Happy is the nation whose God is the Lord."—Psalm 144:15.

AS Independence Day draws near one feels keenly the heritage we have as Americans. High ideals, noble sacrifices, and glorious triumphs have been ours as a nation. Special blessings have fallen upon us, enabling us to be a blessing to others.

But are there not some things that cause us to grieve as we look with a practical eye upon present conditions?

The "GRAB" for materialistic infidelity, the abolishment of the Christian Sabbath, immodesty, increase of crime, indifference to law, inclination to corruption, incentive to pleasure in excess, and iniquity of divorce, is sapping slowly the heart of this nation from Almighty God.

God cannot be the Lord of hearts filled with these things. A nation cannot be happy unless God is their Lord. God will be Lord of the Nation only as He is Lord of each person's heart. The little poem is a good resolve to God and to our Nation.

"I am but one; but I am one
I cannot do everything, but I can do something.
What I can do, I ought to do;
What I ought to do, God helping me, I will do."

SUBSTITUTES WILL CONDUCT SERVICES

Five To Preach from Local Pulpits in Absence of Regular Pastors

FOUR LICENSED

"Singing Salesman" To Give Service at Asbury M. E. Sunday Night

Four substitute ministers will preach from local church pulpits at Sunday services, in the absence of the regular pastors. All are local licensed preachers with the exception of Dr. M. E. Ketcham of Delaware, who will preach at Asbury M. E. church at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning and at the Morral M. E. Church at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night.

At the night service at Asbury M. E. church, at 7:30 o'clock, S. C. Biddle, 330 Franklin st., known as the "singing salesman," will sing and speak. Mr. Biddle is a song leader at the Epworth M. E. Sunday School. Dr. Ketcham and Mr. Biddle are presiding for the Asbury and Morral M. E. services in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Gaylord Bogardus, who is recovering from an appendicitis operation at White Cross hospital, Columbus.

Both morning and night services at Oakland Evangelical church will be in charge of substitute local ministers as the pastor, the Rev. R. E. Williamson, is conducting a revival in Baltimore, O. The Rev. Dean L. Vermillion will preach at 10:30 Sunday morning and the Rev. Clark Davis at an evangelistic service at 7:30 Sunday night.

The Rev. Ernest Braden will give the sermon at the service at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning at Calvary Evangelical church. The pastor, the Rev E. Radebaugh, is in attendance at the Evangelical missionary conference in Akron.

In the absence of the Rev. S. S. Hardy, rector, who with Mrs. Hardy and their two daughters, Dora and Mary, are spending the month of July at a resort on Lake Huron, the Rev. James Due, Episcopal rector from Bucyrus, will conduct Sunday services at St. Paul's Episcopal church.

The only services at the local Episcopal church during the month of July will be the celebration of Holy Communion to be conducted by Mr. Due at 7:30 o'clock each Sunday morning.

Local Pastor Made Way Through College Serving as Railroader, Table Waiter

BY FRANCES JENNINGS
Star Staff Writer

A minister who was formerly employed as countersigner on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and waited tables in college in order to pay for an education sufficient to qualify for the position he hoped to fill, is the Rev. James McIntire Fisher, associate pastor of First Presbyterian church and acting pastor of Lee Street Presbyterian mission.

Rev. Mr. Fisher, for nearly three years a Marion pastor, is a native of Baltimore, Md. He received an extensive education which began when he was a student in the Baltimore city schools. He entered McDonough School, McDonough, Md, Aug. 1, 1899, graduating there in 1904. He then accepted the railroad position which he held until Aug. 1, 1909 From Sept. 1, 1907 until June of the following year he was also a night student at the Milton Academy in Baltimore. He graduated with honors and was winner of the gold medal for oratory in May, 1908.

Upon completion of the night school course Mr. Fisher went to Westminster, Md, and became a student at the Western Maryland Preparatory School in Sept., 1908. He graduated in June, 1909, and entered Western Maryland College, also located at Westminster, in September of the same year. He graduated in the classical department with a degree of A. B. in June, 1913, receiving a certificate covering a four-years course in elocution in addition to the regular course of study. He also received a special certificate from the state board of education, Maryland, covering a four-years course in pedagogy.

At Baltimore June 19, 1913 Mr. Fisher married Miss Nannie Armstrong He returned to his theological duties in the fall however, as a student at Western Theological Seminary, Pittsburgh, Pa. He graduated from the three-year course in 1916 and, in recognition of his high scholastic standing in both the college and seminary, Western Theological Seminary conferred upon him the degree of theologiae sacrae baccalaurei in 1926.

It was in Sept. 1916 that Mr. Fisher realized his boyhood ambition of becoming a minister. He was ordained into the Presbyterian ministry at Cameron, W. Va. by the Wheeling Presbytery. He had been granted a licensure to preach in April, 1915 by the Baltimore Presbytery.

Mr. Fisher took up his official duties in 1916 as pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Cameron, W. Va. From there he went to Mount Joy, Pa, to serve from 1921 to 1925 and to Marion upon completion of his duties there. After serving as director of the Mission for two years Mr. Fisher became associate pastor of First Presbyterian Church in April, retaining his mission pastorate.

In addition to membership in the Marion Presbytery and Marion County Ministerial Association, Mr. Fisher is a member of Cameron Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, No. 17 and of Marion Chapter, Council and Commandery. He holds the position of chairman of the committee on church erection in the Presbytery and is a member of the Board of National Missions.

Reverend and Mrs. Fisher have two children, Dorothy, aged 13, and James Jr., aged 9. They reside at 450 Avondale av.

MUSIC ON FOREST LAWN PROGRAMS

Wyandot County Glee Club To Be Heard in Concert Sunday Night

Two musical programs will be held Sunday at Forest Lawn church instead of the regular preaching services, it was announced today.

At the morning service, at 10:30 o'clock, members of the choir, directed by W. B. Long, will be heard in a musical program. Members of the girls' chorus of the church will assist with several numbers.

The Wyandot County Glee club will be heard in concert at the service at 7:30 p. m.

The Rev John A Carriker, pastor of the church, with his wife and two children, Betty Lou and John Jr., are spending the month in Kansas and Colorado.

UNUSUAL SERMON

Pastor To Speak on "Kansas City, Houston, Heaven"

"Kansas City, Houston, Heaven" is the subject of an unusual sermon to be preached by the Rev. Frank P. George, pastor, at 8 o'clock, Sunday night at Community church, Herman st. Mr. George will attempt to set forth the platform of the Kingdom of heaven as compared with the platforms of the two political parties, Republicans and Democrats, which convened at Kansas City and Houston, respectively.

TO HOLD PICNIC

Three Rural Churches To Unite in Quarterly Meeting

Three local rural churches will unite in a picnic and quarterly meeting at 6 o'clock Sunday night at the Wyandot M. E. church, it was announced today by the Rev. L. B. Smith, acting pastor of the three churches. The other churches included are Little Sandusky and Harpster M. E.

Dr H. E. Armacost, of Delaware, superintendent of the Delaware district of the M. E. church, will be the principal speaker.

KILGEN ORGAN ALSO HEARD FIRST TIME

Motion Picture House To Be More of Magnet with Added Features

ELECTRIC CONTROLLED

Complimentary Box of Chocolates Today for Women Visitors

Oakland Heights, the fast growing section of southwest Marion, now can claim two more great additions to her already long list of advantages for home-owners and builders.

Today, the Oakland theater will first present to its patrons the new Kilgen Wonder organ, which has been installed in this new and splendid little theater. Many believe the new Oakland is the finest theater of its size in Ohio. This little theater has been attracting large crowds since being remodeled to the extent of some $15,000. Now with the new organ Marion people will be more favored than ever and the Oakland theater should in turn enjoy even a more phenomenal business.

This new Kilgen organ was built in St. Louis, Missouri, by the famous organ makers, George Kilgen and Son, which company is known to be one of the leading organ making concerns in the country, in addition to being one of the oldest and largest firms of its kind in the world.

The new Oakland organ is different from the old type of organ in that it is completely controlled by electricity. When a key is pressed an electrical force energizes a magnet and operates the action. There are many thousands of electro magnets in it. The control wires are brought from the keyboard to a relay, which in this organ is the size of a telephone switchboard of a fair sized city. It has many miles of wire in it and hundreds of electric switches which throw into play the various sections of the organ. The action is instantaneous and quicker than a piano in response. All types of music can be played on it from the slow legato movement to the fastest staccato orchestral music and jazz. Since the development of this action by this firm, new fields have been opened to modern composers of organ music as they are not longer limited by the sluggishness of the old style organ action.

All basic metals were used in its construction. Pure silver and platinum for the electric contacts; brass steel and copper for the action; lead, tin, brass for the pipes. The skins of many calve, a sheep and chamois were also used. There are woods from nearly every forest in the world used in its construction.

There are hundreds of pipes, ranging in size from the pedal pipes 30 or more feet in height to the top notes of the piccolo a half inch in height. These pipes are voiced to perfection and show the master hand of the artists.

The organ has the features of the cathedral organ comprising the deep sonorous tone of the diapason. It has also the effect of a symphony orchestra. The tone is beautiful, thrilling and inspiring. You can listen to the deeper music of Bach and the heavier symphonys or the lighter works of Mozart and the operas, or a violin solo by Kreisler, or a selection from Sousa in true brass band style, or a modern jazz with its saxophone and its syncopation. It is truly a "WONDER ORGAN."

In addition to the attraction of the new Kilgen Organ, this afternoon will witness the opening of the New Oakland Sweet Shop next door to the Oakland theater. This new shop meets a long needed contribution to the Oakland Heights business district. It will make possible the serving of delightful refreshments to the after theater crowds.

This new sweet shop will serve ice creams, candies, sodas, sundaes, and cold thirst-quenching drinks. Lust's candies and Isaly's ice creams will be the "Sweet Shop" specialties.

Today a special complimentary box of chocolates will be offered to each woman purchaser at the "Sweet Shop." All-day suckers will be given to the kiddies.

Much of the success of the New Oakland Theater and the credit for opening of the new Oakland Sweet Shop is due to tireless efforts of J. J. Huebner, general manager of the New Oakland for the R. Mazon theater interests.

Mortgage Loans Back To Normal Following Marked Increase in County Total

Recorder Records Reveal Past Week's Total To Be $68,894.94; Number Drops from 47 to 37; Real Estate Transactions Also Decrease During Week

After a marked increase in which mortgage loans advanced near the $140,000 mark last week, the trend for the week ending yesterday was back to normal. The total amount of mortgages placed on Marion county property this week was $68,894.94.

Of this amount $58,111.76 was placed upon real estate in the city. The remainder, $10,783.18, was recorded for real estate in the county.

With a total of $54,751.76 building and loan companies took the lion's share of this week's business. Individuals, industrial corporations, life insurance companies and banks took the remaining $14,143.18.

While mortgage loans on Marion property showed a decrease from $134,963.04, to $58,111.76, mortgages on property outside the city increased from $3,850 to $10,783.18 this week.

The total number of mortgages dropped from 47 to 37 and the number of real estate transfers dropped from 33 to 27 this week.

The deeds transferred this week follow:

VALUE GOES UP

Expansion of Sales of Manufactured Products Higher This Year

Washington, June 30—Expansion in the sales of manufactured products produced an increase of about one per cent in the value of the United States foreign trade during the first quarter of 1928 as compared with the first quarter of 1927, the department of commerce reports. The quarters' total was $2,273,000,000.

Exports had slightly greater value than in the first quarter of 1927, reaching a total of $1,204,000,000, but there was a reduction in volume due largely to sharp decline in shipments of cotton, coal, tobacco, wheat and other grains. Gains in manufactured products such as foods and finished articles to some extent offset the decline in raw material exported.

Imports, with a total of $1,069,000,000, showed an increase in value of 2.2 per cent over the first quarter of 1927. Declines were noticed in imports of crude materials and manufactured foods. Crude foods and semi-manufactured and finished articles gained.

SUMMER LINES ACTIVE

Hardware market centers throughout the country continue to report very active sales of seasonal hardware lines, particularly garden and lawn tools, Hardware Age says. This stimulation is due largely to more settled weather conditions and the healthy growth of crops.

U. S. TENNIS SQUAD NOT BEING FAVORED TO WIN DAVIS CUP

American Squad Expected To Have Hard Time in Challenge Round

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, June 30 — Those who have been dallying with the notion that the Davis Cup has been postmarked, F. O. B. America, for July delivery may be interested to learn that a smart tennis man today offered to bet $100 against $200 that the United State didn't win a single match in the five comprising the challenge round. If this doesn't leave the 100 per cent Amerikaners aghast, then let it be recorded that Vincent Richards, former internationalist, declined to be a party to the bet.

In fine, Richards thought more of $200 than be did of America's chances of winning one match in five. The young man, having renounced amateurism in favor of eating daily, may be presumed to be in a position to speak his mind without restraint.

Challenge Round Tough

The writer judged from Richards' remarks that he, too, thought all too little of the chances of Tilden, Hennessey, Hunter and Lott in the challenge round with France, provided they get that far. They still face the necessity of beating Italy before they can qualify for the meeting with France.

The writer was somewhat pained to learn that the discussion failed to consider America's chances for a team victory but merely for one victory. The boys seemed to regard this as quite a controversial point and I know Mr. Tilden, for one, will be delighted. He is fixing to play three of those matches himself.

Abroad More Difficult

"Tilden will find the winning of Davis Cup matches abroad just a little more difficult than winning them at home," Richards said as he reached for the $200 and abstractedly placed it in the hole of his shoe. "Besides, he has to beat Cochet and Lacoste and that comes very hard, no matter where you play them. If it happens to be in their own backyard, that is just your hard luck.

"As for the doubles, Tilden and Hunter won at Germantown last September but they never will be lucky enough again to catch Borotra and Brugnon on such an off day. This pair never played so badly before or since, yet they were able to carry the American team to five sets and possibly would have won if Borotra hadn't "thrown" a point at a very critical juncture because he thought a linesman had called a poor one against America in the previous rally.

"I'm pulling for America just as strongly as when I was in there trying to help defend the cup. But this doesn't blind me to facts. The facts are that we will have gained one of those moral victories if we manage to make the challenge round close."

PLAY PRELIMINARY

Marion Team Will Meet Columbus Kappas Here

First out-of-town opposition to be placed against a local recreation team in a preliminary game will be seen here Sunday at Lincoln park when the Marion Kappas meet the Columbus Kappa aggregation.

The Columbus nine has not been defeated this season and the Kappas have a good record. The locals will use Rank and McClintock for their battery with Gross and Brock doing the mound work for the visitors.

NEW YORK, BROOKLYN FAIL TO MAKE GAINS

Cardinals Move Fast To Keep in Front of National Race

New York, June 30—New York and Brooklyn are having a tough time trying to gain ground on the St. Louis Cardinals, National league pace-setters. The Giants have won five straight games and the Dodgers have copped six in a row, but the Cards have captured seven of their last nine starts and lead the second-place Giants by five games.

The Cardinals are making every hit count, they were outbatted by Pittsburgh yesterday but scored nine runs on 11 hits and knocked Ray Kremer out of the box. The Pirates collected 13 hits but couldn't score on the veteran Clarence Mitchell until the last inning when Paul Waner knocked a homer with the bases full.

The Reds took fourth place away from the Cubs by beating them 4 to 2. Critz got four hits and pitcher Charley Root took his sixth straight beating.

Herb Pennock, veteran southpaw, appears to be the only member of the old guard of the Yankees who is slipping. He was trounced by the Athletics yesterday, 6 to 4, thanks to an inglorious muff by Bob Meusel, and has lost four of his last five starts.

The Yankees will play no more games in Shibe Park this season, and the Mackmen were only too glad to bid them farewell. The A's won only two out of 11 games with the champion in Philly.

A three-run rally in the ninth staked Cleveland to a 9 to 8 victory over the White Sox. George Grant was batted out in the last inning but was credited with his seventh straight win.

Other teams were idle.

There is a type of efficiency expert that always begins with a scheme to utilize the match stubs—or something like that.

Herb Pennock Spends 10 Years As Pitcher of Little Consequence Before Developing Into Leading Hurler

By FRANK G. MENKE

IT'S rather difficult to find any story in baseball's annals to match the strange career of Herb Pennock, the Yankee's southpaw ace.

Connie Mack perhaps suffers from terrific attacks of regret whenever his optics focus upon the name of Pennock. For Connie sold Herb to the Red Sox thirteen years ago for a song—or maybe it was two songs and a second handed but still serviceable graphaphone record.

He didn't think Herb was such a much. But in the years since then Connie has spent about $500,000 in cash and $500,000 worth of patience and energy in attempting to locate another pitcher of equal worth—without success.

If Pennock were with the Athletics this year, or if he had been with them last year or the season before—the "A's" may have won through—but he wasn't. He was with the Yankees. So the Yanks—not the hirelings of Cornelius won the flags of 1926 and 1927 and seem destined to harpoon another in AD 1928.

The story of Pennock is one of those romantic things that are occasionally found in baseball's pages; the story of a youngster who was pronounced "not so good" by two major League clubs, who fought long and sometimes despairingly for his chance, got it at last—and then became the star of stars.

Started In 1912

Connie picked up Pennock in 1912 when Herb was 18 and rather frail and but more along the lines of a graceful ballroom dancer than a pitcher who eventually would become a truly rugged operator out there on the pitching knoll.

In 1921 Connie permitted Herb to work in only three decisive games. He won one; lost the other two. The next season Herb was in only two definite combats and finished the season with a record of one game won, one game lost, percentage .500.

In 1914—the year the Athletics won their last pennant—Herbert Pennock got a real chance—and showed some real stuff. He won 11 times in 15 starts and finished up the year with the dizzy mark of .733.

Red Sox Get Hurler

After which Connie soured on the club and scattered it to the four winds. The Red Sox decided to take one of his orphans—none other than Pennock—and when they finally had him properly netted in one of their uniforms they decided:—

"We've got a star."

In 1915 pitching part of the season for the Athletics and the last half for the pennant winning Red Sox, Pennock's record showed like this:

Won 3, lost 5, percentage .375, earned runs allowed 6.37.

When a pitcher allows the awful number of six runs per game it generally spells major league disaster for him. It did for Pennock. The Sox hung onto him into the next Spring and decided to give him a new chance to prove himself. But when Pennock lost his only two decisive games it was the "bushes" for him.

Farmed To Buffalo

The Sox farmed him out to the Buffalo Internationals, whereupon Herbie, pitching against minor league swatters could do no better than win 7 games in 13 starts.

But the Sox recalled him anyway. They figured he might have been benefited by his stay in Buffalo. He was—by a scant margin. He worked in 10 games and broke even, losing five and winning five.

In 1918 Pennock was in the war.

Given Another Chance

A year later the Sox put him to work again. He improved—radically. He won 16 games in 24 starts. The next season—1920—he again won 16 but suffered 13 defeats—not so good! Then came two sad seasons, 1921 when he won only 12 and lost 14 and 1922 when he could win only 10 in 27 starts.

So here we have Pennock, after 10 seasons as a big league hurler a winner of 75 games and a loser of 71. And Pennock was 28, with a decade of big league labors behind him—and don't forget that 10 years is longer than the average hurler's life under the "Big Tent."

Based on all figures, Pennock wasn't much of a bargain. But the Yankees thought so. They angled with the Red Sox and as a result, Norman McMillan, Camp Skinner and cash were traded to the Sox—and the Yankees took Pennock.

Herb Changes In New York

The Gotham atmosphere changed Pennock almost miraculously. Herb immediately became a pitching sensation in the Yankee regalia. Laboring in 25 tilts in 1923 he practically pitched the Yanks into a pennant by winning 19. In 1924 he won 21 out of 30. He skidded a bit in 1925 but came back to win 23 out of 34 in 1926 and he won 19 out of 27 last year.

Thus Pennock who could win only 75 times while he was losing 71 in the 10 earlier years has won 99 and lost only 51 during his five years as a Yankee.

In the 13 years span since Connie Mack let Pennock go, the leader of the Athletics hasn't been able, with all his terrific expenditures, to get a pitcher whose record can remotely approach Pennock's with the Yankees.

And, in conclusion, this same Pennock who was cast off by Mack, then shoved to the minors by one Red Sox manager, and traded by another—this "orphan" is now getting $10,000 a year which is the top salary for moundsmen in the American League.

If some fictionist wrote a story about Pennock the innocent bystanders would scoff. But Pennock's story is a fact—and you can't laugh it off.

Bishop Football Stadium To Be Completed in 1929

Delaware, June 30—Selby athletic field stadium at Ohio Wesleyan university here will cost approximately $150,000 and will be completed before the beginning of the 1929 football season, a trustee decided here today. Erection of the stadium will be begun next spring if an additional $50,000 needed to cover the total cost of the field can be raised by that time.

Ohio Wesleyan now has $100,000 given for the new field by Pearl Selby, Lakewood, and Homer, Roger, and Mark Selby, Portmouth.

Trustees authorized the athletic board to proceed at once with the drainage, piping, grading, and seeding of the field, so that a well-sodded gridiron may be developed by September, 1929.

The committee bandoned hope of building the stadium this year when it was learned that contractors could not complete the work until the last of the 1928 season.

FOUR YOUTHS AWAIT GUN IN OCEAN RACE

Woman Sailor To Aid Husband Contest for Queen Victoria Cup

New York, June 30—Four trim but tiny yachts tugged at their moorings off Ambrose Channel lightship today waiting for the starting gun at noon which will send them across the ocean to Santander, Spain, in a dramatic race for a cup offered by Queen Victoria, of Spain.

Not one of the tiny craft is more than 55 feet at the waterline. All are manned by American crews. They are named the Nina, Pinta, Rofa and Mohawk. The first two are named after two of Christopher Columbus' expedition of three ships, which sailed from Spain in 1492 and brought the great explorer to America.

Woman Sailor

The crew of the Rofa includes a woman sailor, Mrs. William Roos, wife of Capt. Roos, owner and commander of the craft. The yachts, which are the smallest ever to compete in a transatlantic race, and their crews include some of the best yachtsmen in America in addition to the first woman crew hand to compete in such an event.

As the craft are not of exact dimensions, three of them have been given time allowances, the Mohawk being the scratch boat. According to tentative computations, the Pinta will be allowed 18 hours, 29 minutes and 28 seconds, the Nina 28 hours, 50 minutes and 39 seconds, the Rofa 57 hours, 40 minutes and 50 seconds.

All four are commanded by their respective owners; Capt. William J. Curtis Jr, of the Pinta; Capt. Paul Hammond, of the Nina; Capt. Dudley Wolfe, of the Mohawk; and Capt. William Roos, of the Rofa.

Weather conditions for the start were only fair.

COLORED TEAM

Will Play Marion Eagles at Lincoln Park Sunday

Marion's Eagles baseball team will take another shot at a colored nine here Sunday afternoon when they tackle the Florida Cuban Giants at Lincoln Park.

Coming out of the sunny south rated as the champion team of Dixie, the Giants are said to be as strong a crew as the Homestead Grays that defeated the locals two weeks ago, 6 to 3.

FEMININE SWIMMERS ENTERED IN TRYOUTS

American Members of Olympic Team Are To Be Selected

New York, June 30—Every national champion, every Olympic winner now in training, every girl with any chance for the Olympic team, is included in the entry of 150 feminine swimmers who will compete today, tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday at Rockaway Beach, N. Y., in the final Olympic swimming tryouts and national championships, combined in the biggest aquatic meet New York has ever known.

Twenty girls will be picked from the four-day carnival for the trip to the Olympic games at Amsterdam. The events in which tryouts will be held are 100-meter and 400-meter free-style races, 200-meter breadstroke, 100-meter backstroke, springboard diving and plain high diving. These six events with the 400-meter relay, comprise the Olympic swimming program for women.

In addition these events will be national championships and other national titular fixtures to be decided are the half mile and one-mile free-style races, 220-yard backstroke swim, 300-meter medley, 880-yard relay and plain and fancy high diving from platform.

TOLEDO GOLFER MAY WIN FIFTH TOURNEY

Harold Weber to Meet William Deuschle in Finals of Ohio Meet

Youngstown, June 30—Harold Weber, veteran Toledo golfer stands a chance of winning his fifth Ohio State amateur golf championship when he plays William Deuschle, Columbus for the 1928 title, scheduled for today on the Youngstown Country club links.

Weber, yesterday afternoon, stopped James "Scotty" Reston, the 18-year-old Dayton youth whose sensational play brought him as far as the semi-finals. Weber defeated Reston 2 up while Deuschle nosed out Raleigh Lee, Columbus by one up in the other semi-final match.

The Toledo golfer was hard pressed continually in his two matches Friday played in an almost continuous rain, but his wonderful shots finally cinched the matches. Before defeating Reston, Weber won from Dr. Marty Seymour, Cleveland, 2 and 1, in the third round.

Reston defeated Bob Johnson, Springfield, two up yesterday morning. In the other third rounds Deuschle defeated John Florio, Columbus, by shooting nothing less than a 33, three under par and an eagle three on the ninth hole while Lee defeated Carmen Bill, Cleveland 2 and 1.

TOM HEENEY'S BROTHERS VISIT TRAINING DOMAIN

New York, June 30—Breezes from the old homeland were blown to Tom Heeney today in his Fairhaven training domain when his three brothers, finishing a 13,000 mile journey from New Zealand, clasped his hand for the first time in four years. The other Heeney boys—Jack, 32; Artie, 31; and Pat, 28—left the ancestral roof in [illegible] on June 8.

Rally of Industrials Encounters Considerable Opposition in Market

New York, June 30—The American motor stocks were the leaders in a moderate forward movement at the beginning of the short session of the market today. Removal of all obstacles to the merger of the Dodge and Chrysler companies and the acquisition of the Pierce Arrow company by Studebaker was an important factor in the broadening of the demand for the motor car shares. General Motors and Chrysler were the outstanding leaders in the forward move, but Nash, Studebaker, Willys Overland and Hupp were also in demand.

Business reviews at the week-end were favorable, expert opinion showing the "underlying solidity of business" at the beginning of the second half of 1928. With political policies and platforms of the major parties all settled and candidates selected, it is believed that American business is now in position to ignore political factors of all kinds for the balance of the year at least.

Having gained considerable ground this week, the rally in industrial stocks encountered considerable opposition today in the form of profit taking and short selling, particularly in sections of the market where price gains have been so conspicuous this week. Radio was forced back a few points and American Smelting, American Linseed and other speculative favorites declined a point or two. But trading slowed down at the low price ranges and the market exhibited more of the remarkable strength which has been in evidence since the smash in prices last week.

Expectation of easier money conditions after the next week or two were not so general in the financial district. Heavy payments for interest and dividends will return in the form of deposits to the banks, but a further increase in reserve bank rediscounts which may take place in the near future, would undoubtedly upset the calculations of the bulls.

Chrysler's new advance to around 74 was easily the feature of the second hour. Prompt completion of the merger with Dodge Brothers is expected to improve the market position of the stock, and the strongest of speculative buying was in evidence today. General Motors topped 190 in trading, but offerings at that price were liberal and further progress was impossible.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, June 30—Again yesterday the grain markets frazzled the patience of traders who were either long or short. Corn had a sharp bulge early, but lost it again before the close. Wheat was up and down in a narrow range.

At the end wheat was off ⅛@¾c; corn was ⅛c lower to ¼c higher; oats were ¼c lower to ⅛c higher; rye was ⅝c lower to ⅝c higher.

Sentiment at the close was more bearish than ever on wheat, but the market may not take a definite downward trend for all that. It acts as if it were sold out.

There is little or no outside buying, and the local professionals appear to be bearish almost to a man.

Bulls Without Confidence

The few traders who believe higher prices are possible are nervous about holding on. If they buy wheat they sell it again on a small dip and shake their heads sadly.

The market, in other words, acts just as it usually acts when it is on the eve of turning from a bear into a bullish position. It acts much as corn was acting a week or ten days ago just before it turned sharply upward for the big advance of the last few days.

Whether wheat is going to turn upward remains to be seen. Perhaps it is going lower. But a market that has a break of between 30 and 35 cents from the top and now hangs around within a couple of cents of its recent bottom cannot be a great incentive to sell wheat down here to traders who are at all cautious.

Wheat has been threshing around in low ground for some time. Its upturns have been disappointing, but it has not given bears any great actual advantage no matter how confident they may feel that prices are going lower.

Bear News Is Out

All the bear news is out. Items that are bullish lie unnoticed. The weather conditions in the Southwest are ignored. The chance of rust in Canada on any shift to hot weather is laughed at. The shortage of wheat in Russia is overlooked.

Nothing is considered now but the big supplies in sight. They were in sight when the market was very much higher and going up.

This being the last day of the week there may be some evening up. If that means short covering the market could advance. In any event, the sale of wheat at this level seems unnecessarily taking a chance that is urged by feeling instead of by reason.

Corn drove in a lot more shorts early yesterday. The Jul future climbed up a couple of cents before it turned weak and began to slide down hill again. The other futures followed the July on a lesser scale.

In the pit numerous traders announced positively that the "deal in July" was over. That does not seem so certain to me. Corn does not look to this writer like a good sale at this time, even if it eases off again today. At any time it may turn right round and go up as it did at the start yesterday.

The action of rye for the last few days suggests, a good deal as the wheat market has suggested, accumulation by buyers who will not bid the market up, but sit back and take offerings at or below a certain level.

If this really is what has been going on rye and wheat both are laying a sound foundation for an advance later.

So far as statistics go—which is not very far in grain speculation—rye is in a tight position. But bulls are impatient and many of them sell out if a market does not start as quickly as they think it ought to.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged; corn was 1-2 to 3c up; oats were unchanged; rye was firm; barley was firm.

Toledo Close

Toledo, June 30—Cash grain close.

Wheat—2 red 1.76@1.77; corn 2 yellow 1.11@1.12; 3 yellow 1.10@1.11; oats 2 white 78½@78½; rye 2 1.41; seed close; clover cash imported old 14.25; domestic cash 17.75, Oct. 18.75 B; Dec. 18.60 B; alsike cash 16.25; August 16.75 B; Oct. 17.00 B. timothy cash 2.35; Dec 2.90.

Price Decline Noted In Local Vegetable Market

This week saw a general price decline in the vegetable markets, fruits, however, held steady and the closing of the week found no great change in prices. Strawberries were fairly steady all week, in spite of the fact that dealers were predicting the end of home grown berries. Berries of inferior quality which were selling as low as 15c early in the week, had been replaced by good quality fruit later on which were selling readily at 23 cents.

This week also saw the arrival of blueberries and dewberries, neither were on the market in great quantities but dealers report the supply as moving readily at 35 and 40 cents a quart. Black raspberries also appeared on the market the latter part of the week and were selling at 25 cents a pint. A few red raspberries were also offered by dealers this week and sold as high as a $1 a quart.

Green corn became more plentiful this week, although the price showed no signs of weakening, dealers asking 90 cents a dozen. New potatoes took a spectacular tumble today when No. 1 stock was offered as low as 20 cents a peck, the same price as old stock. The supply is large and demand heavy.

Peas and green beans also showed a decline during the week. Peas which were being offered at two pounds for 25 cents early in the week, could be bought at two pounds for 15 cents the latter part. Green beans were being offered at two pounds for 25 cents compared to 18 cents a pound earlier in the week.

IN the new Brightwood addition third house from Mt. Vernon, I am building a new 7 room English colonial model home all large rooms throughout. Basement has three apartments, laundry, fruit and furnace rooms, reception hall with cloak closet, large living room, dining room, kitchen and kitchenet, toilet on first and second floor, four large bedrooms with spacious closets to each room, finished attic. This home is up to the minute in every way with built in features, steam heating system, electric refrigeration, double garage, shrubbery planted. If interested come and see this home and I will finish it to your liking. Don't forget this is only a 10 minute walk to the court house and where schools are close and the best. I supervise the building and it must be first class in every way.

Fiscal Year Ending Today Was Most Prosperous In Ohio Building Activities

Association Reports About $55,000,000 Will Be Paid to Ohio Investors in Dividend and Interest For Money Deposited With Loan Companies

Columbus, June 30—Today, the end of the fiscal year of 1927-1928, marks the close of the most prosperous year in building activities in Ohio, according to the Ohio Building Association league.

Approximately $55,000,000 will be paid to Ohio investors in dividend and interest for money deposited in the building and loan banking houses, the organization stated.

This $55,000,000 which building and loan officials claim to be the biggest dividends of any Ohio industry or business with the single exception of agriculture, was distributed among 2,000,000 depositors and stockholders in building and loan association, the announcement declared.

Loans Responsible

Pointing out that the building and loan associations are responsible for much of the prosperity enjoyed by Ohioans during the past 12 months, the officers of the league asserted that the Ohio companies had loaned $330,000,000, all of which eventually went to Ohio laborers and tradesmen.

The statement announced the financing of 50,000 new homes in the Buckeye state and the spending of $125,000,000 for remodeling and improving residences already built.

Ohio building and loan companies did not have a single failure during the past fiscal year, according to the report.

The $55,000,000 paid out in dividends and interest is the largest financial melon ever cut by building and loan associations of Ohio in any similar period, the announcement concluded.

Ohioans Turn Attention to State Politics; Democratic Meet in August

Columbus, June 30—Now that the national conventions of the nation's two great parties have been held and have taken their places in political history, Ohioans today are turning their attention to state politics.

The next six weeks will witness an intensive pre-primary campaign in the Buckeye state in which 63 aspirants for nominations at the statewide primaries on Aug. 14 for U. S. senator, governor and other state offices will seek places on the Democratic and Republican ballots which will be submitted to Ohio voters at the November election.

Campaigns, also, are being launched throughout the state by candidates for congressmen, and for various county and local offices. A number of candidates already have opened headquarters. Others will do so within a few days.

Republican candidates, in furthering their respective campaigns, may utilize the national and state G. O. P. platforms. For the Democratic candidates, only the national platform is available. The Democrats of Ohio will not adopt a state platform until after the primaries. Their state convention is not scheduled to convene until Aug. 24.

TOURING KENTUCKY

Delegates Close Annual Convention of Auto Association

Cincinnati, June 30— Delegates to the twenty-sixth annual convention of the American Automobile Association, which closed its business session here yesterday, are touring Kentucky today in a special train. Visits are to be made at the state capitol and to several Blue Grass stock farms.

Thomas P. Henry, Detroit, was reelected to the presidency of the association, yesterday for his sixth consecutive year at the head of the organization. Other officers elected were Charles H. Hayes, Chicago, Frank S. Gold, Minneapolis, Daniel R. Reese, Scranton, Pa., Herbert L. Meldrum, Buffalo, N. Y., Percy F. Towne, San Francisco, Perley F. Ripley, Maine, and Frank O. Miller, Jacksonville, Fla., vice-presidents; George W. White, Washington, D. C., treasurer, and Charles C. James, secretary.

CLUB MEETS

Iberia, June 30—The second meeting of the "Kook-ee girls" was held at the home of the leader, Mrs. A. J. Craley. There were 19 members present with the leader and the assistant leader, Mrs. Homer Braden. Response to the roll call was made with the name of a favorite fruit. The girls decided to have a play "The Spirit of the Home" using the spirit of the 4 H's head, hand, heart and health. A discussion, "Requirements of a Club Member" was given by Eunice Braden; "Importance of Milk," LaDonna Lewis; "Playing Fair with Our Bodies", Helen Ott.

It was also decided to make aprons and caps and a committee was appointed for refreshments for the next meeting with Mayburn Hershner.

One can be so polite that he isn't liked.

LUTHERAN SOCIETY PLANS FOR OUTING

Members To Hold Picnic at Bentley Grove, Sunday, July 15

Plans were made for a picnic at Bentley Grove, west of the city, Sunday, July 15, at the meeting of members of the Young People's Missionary society, Emanuel's Lutheran church, last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bentley, west of the city. Mrs. Ivan Graham conducted devotionals and Mrs. Herman Irey presided for a program.

"In the Path of the Queen," a playlet, was presented by Mrs. William Ackerman, Mrs. Irey and the Misses Grace Marie Staker, Virginia Dorsey, Elizabeth Bufford, and Eloise Weber. Mrs. Lloyd Mautz presented the June topic, "The Big Three in a Child's Life" after which Mrs. J. W. Schillinger, Mrs. C. Romoser and Lloyd Mautz led in a discussion. Mrs. Mautz was heard in a vocal solo accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Ackerman. Lunch was served.

Guests of the society included Mrs. Ambrose Bufford, Mr. and Mrs. John Frayer and Miss Frances Amrine. The next regular meeting of the society will be held Friday, July 27 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mautz, Summit-st.

SHE CHEATED BARBER'S SHEARS

When her director informed her that she must have her hair bobbed for a forthcoming production, Dolores Del Rio, movie star, did a little quick thinking. Then she called on her hair-dresser and ordered her crowning glory curled into hundreds of tiny ringlets, giving her a decided bobbed effect. But whether the director will accept the erstwhile bob is another story for the fans.

SEVEN INITIATED BY TIFFIN LODGE

Visiting Orders Present at Meeting of Lime City Council No. 206

Approximately 125 members of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics from Marion, Bucyrus and Tiffin lodges were present last night when the degree team Young America council, No. 136, Tiffin, conferred the work of initiation on seven candidates of Lime City council, No. 206, Marion. A large representation of the State Board of Officers was also in attendance making a total of about 65 visitors. About 45 of that number were from Bucyrus.

Short talks were given by a number of the visiting lodge officers including H. T. Dalley, of Springfield, state councilor, Senator W. A. Clark, of Urbana, state organizer, and C. H. Kernan, of Tiffin superintendent of the Orphan's Home there.

Plans were made by Lime City Council for taking part in the automobile caravan traveling to Tiffin Aug. 5, for the annual picnic of lodges of District No. 4, Junior Order United American Mechanics. The next meeting will be held next Friday night at the hall. A lunch was served during a social hour, last night.

Among the other distinguished lodgemen present for the initiation were Otto F. Haines, of Tiffin, past junior state councilor, Alvin Kernan, of Tiffin, principal of the Orphan's Home school in that city, C. E. Hershey, of Tiffin, a member of the Board of Directors for the Tiffin Orphan's Home, and W. H. Nauseinger, of Bucyrus, district deputy.

A Rendezvous with DEATH!
TO be caught behind the enemy lines meant Death—that same Death that he had once sought so eagerly because of her. But life was different now, he had everything to live for—she loved him, and far in the enemy's territory she waited for him—listening for the hum of his 'plane. Tomorrow—would it be a rendezvous with her—a rendezvous with Love—or Death?

"—BEST SHOW IN TOWN!"—A PARAMOUNT PICTURE

Honefanger Home, Being Moved to Make Way for New Building, Was Built by Gen. J. H. Godman, 80 Years Ago

As near as Colonel B. Christian, one of the early pioneers of this city, can recall, the house which is now known as the Honefanger home, West Center-st, was built about 80 years ago, by Brig. Gen. James H. Godman.

At the time it was built it was considered among the finest specimens of Queen Anne residential architecture in north central Ohio. The house has 16 rooms with servants quarters in the basement. The Godman estate extended more than a quarter of a mile south and about the same distance west, but at that time West Church st, and Orchard-st were not in existence.

Col. Christian is of the opinion that Gen. Godman purchased the real estate directly from Alexander Holmes, one of the original settlers of the town.

Became Well Known

The hospitality that the Godmans extended became so well known and expansive that Gen. Godman after his return from the Civil War was impelled to obtain a political office and became auditor of the state. He and his family moved to Columbus.

When he built the home he was among the early pioneer lawyers and was a successful practitioner at the bar. He was also the first president of the first railway through Marion, in 1852. A station was built especially for it, and is now known as the old I. O. O. F. building on North Main-st.

Gen. Godman was a soldier of distinction and without previous military experience became major of the 4th Ohio Regiment. Later, when his regiment charged at the bloody battle of Fredericksburg, Godman and his horse received eleven wounds. Miraculously, both recovered, but Col. Christian still laughs when he recalls the times he and the Godman boys have impressed the neighborhood gang by showing them the bullets under the hide of the old war horse, "Charlie."

Five Boys in Family

The wonderful parties of the Godman's were partly due to the fact that there were five boys in the family who entertained. William Godman, one of the sons, was president of a college in the south, and another, Henry Clay Godman is now a millionaire. The other three, Marshall, Carol and Harper, are also still living.

The house was sold to Mr. Patton, one of the partners of the Marion Deposit bank. With the death of Mr. Patton, the property was purchased by the late George Wright, who with a large family resided there for some time. In the meanwhile Royal Fish had constructed on Bellefontaine-av, the home now occupied by Mrs. William Scofield. Through an exchange, the Fish family moved into the home where the Wrights had lived, and the Wrights moved to Bellefontaine-av.

By descent and heirship the property became the possession of the Honefangers. This historic old Marion house was the home for 15 years of Mrs. A. Honefanger, 421 S. State-st, who recalls many good times and gay parties in the house.

At the time the house was wired with electricity, the men were a week or more longer at the job than they had planned to be, because of the difficulty in drilling through the solid oak beams in the house. The first modern bathroom in Marion was installed in the home.

A 99-year lease on the property has been given to J. W. Thew, and the house is now being moved to the back of the lot and will face Holmes-st. Forty-one feet of the 123-foot line on Center-st, adjoining the Hotel Harding, will be given over to the new Montgomery Ward building and the remaining 82 feet will be improved.

The Honefanger house will be set on a new foundation and remodeled. Mr. Thew has not made known his plans concerning the use of the house.

VOTERS WILL HEAR TYPICAL CAMPAIGN

Al Smith Does Not Intend To Attack Errors of Republicans

Albany, June 30—The voters of the United States will be treated to a typical Al Smith campaign this year, when the governor of New York takes the stump as the standard bearer of the Democratic party in the contest for the presidency. As far as Governor Smith is concerned it will be the sort of constructive campaign the people of New York have become familiar with in the past decade during which he was a candidate for the governorship five times and was defeated only once.

"I propose to talk to the American people the way I've talked to the people of my own state," the governor said last night, as he sat in the quiet of the executive mansion.

Plans Constructive Campaign

The nominee did not elaborate upon his campaign plans, but those who have followed his election battles in this state predict he will wage a "constructive campaign," following closely his general theory of campaigning. His plan of battle in the coming campaign as outlined by his associates as follows:

"He does not intend to spend much time in attacking the errors of the Republicans as seen through Democratic spectacles. He does not believe in constantly reminding the voters of evils of the past. Instead he proposes to tell the definite things he wants to do. In that kind of a campaign, he claims, he has always been successful.

No "Canned Speeches"

If he follows his New York campaign style, as announced last night, there will be no "canned speeches."

He will use no material which is simply handed out to him. He will talk of nothing he does not thoroughly understand.

The governor has made no arrangements concerning speech making and public appearances. He expects to see the Democratic national committeemen in New York City next week, and at that time some of the preliminary plans may be developed.

The governor does not intend to resign from his present office. If he serves out his entire term as governor up to midnight of next Dec. 31 he will be eligible for retirement with an annual pension amounting to some $6,500.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION ENDS MEETING

Dayton Selected For 1929 Convention; Officers Are Named

Lima, June 30—With the election and installation of officers at last night's closing business session of the annual convention of the Christian Endeavor Union, the railroads and highways leading from this city were crowded with the homeward-bound delegates today.

Officers for 1929 installed last night were: Marlowe Kersey, Dayton, president; John M. Lodwick, Cincinnati, Miss Caroline McClure, Port Clinton, J. C. Keyser, Adena and Rev. Ira D. Warner, Akron, state vice presidents; H. A. Klahr, Columbus, executive secretary, Rev. M. D. Kidwell, Findlay, recording secretary, and R. C. Harrison, Columbus, treasurer.

Rev. P. E. Smoke, of Bucyrus, retiring state president, was selected by the delegates as representative to the world convention of the Christian Endeavor organization.

Dayton was chosen as the 1929 convention city and dates for next year's meeting were fixed as June 25 and 26.

At yesterday's business session, the convention adopted a resolution indorsing the G. O. P. presidential ticket. The Ohio Christian Endeavor Union has nearly a 50,000 membership in the Buckeye state.

The assertion that "practice makes perfect" is only too true in Rosalie's case. Several pairs of filmy chiffon hose are much the worse for her efforts to learn the operation of this "simple" run mender. It looks and works something like a crochet hook with a little guide attached at the end. A perfectly priceless addition to her darning basket when she learns the secret of making it run up the "ladder" as rapidly as it did for the demonstrator.

Urges Censorship Board

Gesture Would About Eliminate Public Speakers at Convention and Leave Nothing But the Flags and the Bands, Rogers Believes

By WILL ROGERS

WELL all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I have seen as I jump from Convention to Convention. I have looked as many speakers in the face in the last three weeks that when I get home and one of my children arises to ask if they can go to the Movies, I will look for them to start out with, "The great Democratic Party of which I and my forefathers for generations back have been honored members, the party of the Common or real people! The party which has always stood for all that is best in human rights! The man I am about to name, is the best fortified to carry on this great work of the down-trodden! The man I am about to name is Applesauce."

I will raise up and desire to smite him, even he be of my own flesh and blood. Thats all I have heard for three weeks steady. If Oratory was devoted to some legitimate cause and reason it might be the means of revolutionizing the world. Its just been Gab, Gab, Gab, with not a laugh, or a new idea in it. There should be a censor or an Analumist or something that before a speaker gets up, they go over his stuff that he is about to perpetrate on the public and take it apart before he delivers it and see if there is a thought or an idea in it. Then if there is not he is told that the best place to dispose of that is at some station over the radio. They have to fill in twelve hours a day 365 days a year, and naturally they run pretty short of stuff, and no matter how few ideas it may have it won't be noticed there.

Cut Out References

Then if it does have an idea wh take it out and let him go before the Convention and just deliver the idea that it has, provided that all the other speakers haven't delivered the same idea all week. Now with this board operating it would shorten the time of the Conventions to almost nothing, because I dont believe there is over three or four ideas at any given Convention. The main thing to make em cut out is the so called "History of the Party." They always start out "This Party has always since its early birth been the party of right. The other party has been crooked all their life. Noah when he founded our party, had both sides to pick from Right or Wrong, and he wisely chose Right, and right we have ever remained, so it is a principle born in us to uphold the weak against the strong. This great Party had its birth in virtue, its youth in righteousness, and is spending its old age in holiness."

Now take out all references to the foundation of the party, take it for granted that if anyone in the hall belongs to the party that they have taken enough interest in it to know how it started and give a n kind of a rough guess on where it is going. If you will just eliminate the names Lincoln, Washington, Roosevelt, Jefferson, Jackson, and Wilson, why both Conventions would get out three days earlier. Every Nut that gets up to spout off always has to refer to one or more of these past favorites. Well, the audience he is talking too know as much about the records of all these illustrious men as he does, so by having their Pictures hanging in the hall of the Convention of the part, to which they belonged to ought to show proper respect without having to rely on each speaker to uphold their reputation. In fact I think a lot of our past great men would be a lot bigger in public estimation if it was made prohibitory for them to be referred to by some of our Politicians.

Swaps and Trades

People generally Judge a man by the type of man that is bragging on him so it really don't do our great men any good to have their names brought up by most of the men who bring them up. For instance people will say, "My Lord if Roosevelt kept company with that fellow and was as near him as that fellow seems to imply, I dont think as much of Roosevelt." You see it gets the man in bad that they are trying to brag on. Now past records is another thing that should come under strict censorship. They are always telling "What my party has accomplished."

AS PICTURED BY THE DEMOCRATS
THE REPUBLICAN PARTY
THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY
AS PICTURED BY THE REPUBLICANS

They paint each other pretty black.

Now as a matter of fact any time a man says that he is insulting the intelligence of his audience, for no party can put over one spring of Legislation without the aid of some members of the other party. Everything that is put through during a Republican administration is always referred to as "Our Legislation," and all that come off during the Democrats is "Our Policies." Now neither one can even pass a motion to adjourn without some aid from the other side.

All Legislation is put through by the aid of swaps and trades. They are just a lot of horse traders. "You help me put over my New Post Office and I will help you get your creek widened." Now there is no necessity for either one, (outside the money being spent in their two localities) but by putting over enough trades he can go home with enough Government loot to be reelected. So make em leave all the so called Party accomplishments out of the speeches. Now that will cut em down a couple of days. When you take em all apart and take out the things that have got no business being said, you just dont leave much.

Give New Idea

But just think of the pleasure of sitting in a Convention and every Speaker that got up you would know that he would advance a new idea, even if he only spoke a minute. Leaving out all that "Its an honor for me to have been chosen" stuff that would cut em down another two days.

So lets get a Censorship board for Public speakers at National Conventions and it will just about eliminate public speakers, and that will leave nothing but the flags, and the band, and that will mean a perfect Convention, and that is what the "Anti Bunk" party promises you, and when elected I will resign."

NINE out of ten men, judging by Packard quality, will estimate the price of the Packard Six around a thousand dollars too high.

If you, too, have over-priced the Packard Six in your own thinking, we want to give you a pleasant surprise.

The Packard Six Five-Passenger Sedan, the most popular of all Packard cars, lists at only $2285 at the factory—other models from $2275 up.

You can actually buy a Packard Six and drive it four or five years at no greater cost than you would have to pay to purchase and trade in a $1500 car every two years or so.

May we give you an estimate on your used car based on the highest figure for which we can hope to sell it? If it is of average value it will make or exceed the down payment on your Packard. The balance can be paid on terms you will find very easy to meet.

Six Marion Citizens Believe City Should Keep Step With Times By Constructing Municipal Landing Field

That the city should have an airport seems to be the opinion of Marion citizens.

At least this appears to be the general opinion if statements made today by a half dozen persons in various occupations can be taken as an indication of the general attitude toward a municipal landing field.

Six persons whose names were picked at random from the telephone directory, all favored a landing field. The occupations of those interviewed were grocer, hardware merchant, insurance salesman, dairy proprietor, garage operator and electrician.

None of the six raised an objection to the airport idea, and all were of the opinion that the project should be pushed through with all possible speed.

The opinions of those interviewed follow:

Frank Berry, grocer, of 790 Bellefontaine av.: "The city needs an airport and should go ahead in its effort to obtain one. Money used for that purpose would be well spent."

LeRoy Diehl, garage operator, of 129 North Prospect st.: "If the city council can see its way clear, I believe a landing field should be established."

J. C. Turner, hardware merchant, 143 East Center st.: "The sooner Marion gets an airport the better. I am favorable to the proposition and believe it would be a great advantage to the city."

R. W. Kauble, insurance salesman, 608 Cleveland av.: Other cities are rapidly establishing airports and Marion ought to do the same."

Elmer Parish, dairy proprietor, 391 North Prospect: "Marion must get in line with other cities. There is no reason why we should be a back number. If other cities need airports Marion does too."

Harry Peifer, electrician, 155 North Grand: "An airport will put Marion on the map. All the leading cities are getting ready for airplane travel and in my opinion Marion should look forward to doing the same."

Voice of Marion Singer Is Lauded in Operatic Debut

MRS. HAROLD K. MOUSER, South Prospect st., has just received an interesting letter from Mrs. W. B. Long, of this city, telling of the debut of her daughter, Viviana, in opera at Lovere, last month. Miss Long sang the role of Gilda in Rigoletto, which Galli Curci sang recently in Cleveland when the Metropolitan Opera Company presented its week of opera in that city. The young singer was an instant success judging from the newspaper comment of the musical critics which Mrs. Mouser has had translated.

Those who heard Miss Long were most enthusiastic about her tone color, range of voice and trueness of pitch and as stated by one critic the young nineteen-year-old prima donna "used her beautiful, limpid voice delightfully and with impetuous accent of passion adorning the trills with exquisite finish."

Praise of Maestro

Another critic lauded the young singer and was generous in his praise of her soft, mellow voice, "capable of extending itself to the highest notes with a spontaneity and harmony of the middle tones." In paying tribute to her acting the critic declared she revealed an ingenious steadiness and a fervor of sentiment appropriate to her personage.

The letter from Maestro Piccoli, with whom Miss Long is studying, carried highest praise for the young singer and prophesied that she "would arrive at the top of the ladder where only few arrive."

Is Talented

Mrs. Mouser's compliment to Marion's youthful prima donna is the unlimited faith which she always has had in her ability and the urge that Marion people accord ample praise to the girl who is to Marion what Marion Talley is to Kansas City.

HAPPY DEMOCRATS LEAVING HOUSTON

First Ballot Nominations and Easy Platform Adoption Cheer Leaders

present system, which, he said, "is entirely unsatisfactory to the great mass of our people."

Attacked by McBride

"Governor Smith assumes the leadership in the wet program to modify the prohibition laws, and it is a challenge to constitutional government."

Both the major political parties, McBride said, went on record in behalf of vigorous and effective enforcement of the prohibition amendment, for both pledged enforcement and both mentioned the Eighteenth amendment by name.

"This," continued McBride, "makes the issues one of candidates."

And after asserting that the league viewed Governor Smith's nomination with "disappointment," he went on to predict:

"The dry forces will meet the challenge Governor Smith presents in his telegram to the convention."

Ample Warning

All of which controversy moved a cynic veteran of many conventions to observe today:

"It is as expected. The dry Democrats in the south can point to the platform with a clear conscience and vote for Al Smith. The wets can point to his telegram to the convention, and vote for him, too—in hopes."

The drys professed to view Governor Smith's telegram to the convention, asserting that he stood for modification of the present laws, with great trepidation and concern. Yet they are forced to admit that they had ample warning of it. Five days before the delegates met in Sam Houston's big pine tabernacle, Governor Smith asserted unequivocally that he stood for a change in the prohibitory laws.

This was in reply to a question propounded to him on Norman E. Mack's statement that he (Smith) always had and always would stand for liberalization of the liquor laws.

When this statement was made, the Tammany people were greatly concerned. They thought the veteran Democratic leader from New York had made a great tactical blunder. They wildly telegraphed to Governor Smith and long-distanced him about the statement and all they got for their pains was the statement that Governor Smith had not changed in any degree his views on the necessity of revising the present prohibitory laws.

This statement by the governor was given wide publicity.

And in spite of it the convention went ahead and nominated him.

Therefore, the Smith supporters said today, the convention did not "buy any pig in a poke" when it nominated the New York governor. It knew exactly where he stood on the controversial issue of prohibition—he believes the laws should be changed, and he said as much in his telegram to the convention.

Play "Smart Politics"

The prevailing opinion among the professional politicians is that the Democrats played "smart politics" in Houston. They adopted a platform that placated the drys to the extent that for the first time in nearly half a century a minority report was not brought against it. At the same time, they nominated for the presidency an admitted and self-confessed wet who favors modification of the present laws.

All of which makes prohibition an issue in the present campaign, despite all claims to the contrary. The radical drys may vote against Smith because of his blunt honesty, but the hopelessly Democratic drys in the South can vote for him too, with one eye on the platform.

TWO-WEEKS' OUTING CLOSES AT CAMPS

Youths Return Home After Receiving Training in Outdoor Life

After two weeks of intensive training in woodcraft and other forms of outdoor life youths, are returning home today from Camp Robert Uhler of the Y. M. C. A. and Camp John A. Owens of Harding Boy Scout Area.

The second period will open Monday in each camp with new boys filling the tents and sleeping houses. These two weeks will be spent in games and educational work.

Closing of the first camping period was marked by special ceremonies. Camp fires held the attraction at both camps with Indian services being held.

At Camp Uhler, Walter Ruzzo was chosen the best all around camper. Joe Williamson was second. Tent No. 3 under the leadership of Eddie Russ was the honor tent for the period with 1079 points out of a possible 1100. Seven boys were initiated into the Mac-o-chee tribe and more than half the youths received the official camp letter. A magical act was put on by Donald Newbold of Marion and Adam Bauer, local photographer, showed several reels of movies.

CAR JUMPS TRACK

City street car traffic east was delayed for about an hour last night when City Car No. 203, of which C. C. Parthemore was the motorman, left the track at the east end of the Pennsylvania av. switch. No damage was done. Only the front truck left the track. The asphalt pavement had curled up over the track and caused the derailment.

CLERK ISSUES 10 BUILDING PERMITS

Proposed Structures and Improvements This Week Total $4,510

Building activities in Marion during the past week, based on permits issued from the office of the city clerk, fell below that of last week by approximately $10,000, according to a check made at the office of the clerk today. But one dwelling was included in the buildings for which permits were taken out this week, while last week was featured by permits for three dwellings.

The total estimated value of the buildings provided for by the 10 permits issued this week was $4,510 compared to $14,050 last week. Five garages, one dwelling, one remodeling of a dwelling and two porches were included in the permits issued this week.

West Center st building activities were increased this week by the addition of a steam shovel on the site to be occupied by the new building just east of Hotel Harding.

Interior work on the Bowen building on East Center st has been started and it expected that it will be pushed rapidly to completion.

ted to sit until their task is done, the grand jury decided, and not be dismissed at the end of each month necessitating the gathering of a new jury to investigate crimes that have not been solved by the original jury.

Return Detective

Entering too into the vast maze of complications which mar the crime and political situation in Chicago is the charge of the chief investigator, Frank J. Loesch that Commissioner of Police Michael Hughes has failed to provide cooperation in arresting hoodlums indicted by the grand jury.

Although Hughes has repeatedly promised to arrest the men indicted and who have been seen in the neighborhoods in which they live, few of those named have ever been brought to the detective bureau for questioning.

Today, Capt. John Stege, former chief of detectives and a man whom the criminal element of Chicago hates because of his unerring cunning, has been assigned to the case. He was brought back to Chicago, after being dismissed by the present administration.

Three men have been named the slayers of Granady. Of the three, Harry Hochstein, John Armando and Sammy Kaplan, only Armando has been arrested. He has been formally charged with the murder.

SALESMAN CLAIMED AT LOCAL HOSPITAL

Edward Oscar Wells, 56, Dies of Complication of Diseases

Following a six weeks illness Edward Oscar Wells, 56, of Chicago, traveling salesman temporarily stationed here, died at 10:30 o'clock last night at City hospital. He had been ill about five years of a complication of diseases.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at the Hess, Markert & Axe funeral home, East Church st., with the Rev. Irvin Kauffman, pastor of Greenwood Evangelical church, officiating. Burial will be in Marion cemetery.

Mr. Wells was born in Muskingum County, O., and was the son of David and Mary Jane Buchanan Wells, both natives of that place. They preceded him in death. His wife is also dead. He traveled for the J. R. Wood & Son Wholesale Jewelry Co., Chicago.

Surviving are four brothers, Ira Wells, 607 Adams st., and Calvin Wells of Houston, Tex., and Frank and Charles Wells of Ganado, Tex.

Daily Proverb—"It becomes no wise man to expose himself to danger on account of the faults or follies of others."

Just think how those delegates would have suffered in a temperature of ninety-four in the shade had not Houston so thoughtfully provided that ice-water!

Mr. Borah wants all the people to observe the eighteenth amendment, to which no possible objection can reasonably be offered, but he should insist that some of them do not, in mixed company, express their opinions of it.

"Save us," says Dr. Glenn Frank, "from thinking too much about the vote of majorities." The idea of a man of the doctor's education and station not knowing any more than to spring a thing like that in a presidential year!

The final session of the Chinese National Economic conference voted unanimously that all of China's financial obligations both past and present, must be recognized, and arrangements made to pay them. It's going to be mighty hard to make any one believe that China has gone communistic.

Republican Harmony Grows.

Additional evidence of the growing harmony in the Republican party is furnished in the announcement of Senator Hiram Johnson that he intends to take the stump for Herbert Hoover in California. It is a matter of record that Mr. Johnson has been a political foe of Mr. Hoover for years.

Here in Ohio there is cause for rejoicing, too. Colonel Carmi Thompson has withdrawn from the primary race for indorsement as United States senator. This leaves Congressman Theodore Burton and Justice Carrington Marshall in the race. Mr. Thompson's withdrawal was in the interest of party peace in Ohio.

There was no reasonable doubt that Mr. Hoover would have carried California, but the Johnson declaration makes the assurance doubly sure. It is one of the significant signs of the times. Coming so closely on the heels of the McNary indorsement of the Hoover candidacy, it means that the Republican nominee is going to have the strongest kind of support in the West. When one considers the doleful predictions before the convention, the stand of these two leaders will have the effect of spreading the existing Republican optimism.

Here at home the Republicans seemingly have determined that personal aspirations shall give away to party aspirations. That is to say, the fight which appeared certain over the seat left vacant by the death of Senator Willis is clearing away. Had Mr. Willis lived it is doubtful if any one would have entered the race against him for the senate, providing he lost the Republican nomination for president. The issue there would be the same as in the case of Senator Fess, who will have no opposition for the nomination.

Colonel Thompson's withdrawal is another hopeful sign of the times. It may even bespeak the end of all opposition for Mr. Burton. No word has come from Mr. Marshall to indicate that he even contemplates withdrawing from the senatorial race, but there still is ample time for him to do so.

Here in Ohio, and elsewhere in the nation, the Republicans are lining up to elect a complete ticket. The time is at hand for harmony in every quarter. With a ticket like Hoover and Curtis leading the nation, and with a strong candidate for governor on the Republican ticket in Ohio, and Fess and another stalwart on the senatorial ticket, indications are for a clear-cut and decisive victory in the state.

Looking back at that ninety-four in the shade in Houston, the probable comment of the majority of the delegates is: "Never again!"

The case of "Big Tim" Murphy, of Chicago, is another to demonstrate the truth of the old one to the effect that those who live by violence die that way—a truth that has come down to us from away back in Biblical times.

The Paris Press takes the view that it doesn't matter greatly whether Hoover or Smith is elected; that France will have to pay her debt to us in either eventuality, which is going a long way for the Paris papers. So far as we have been able to glean, that's the first admission that they owed us a debt.

That Keynote.

Of the many comments on Mr. Bowers' keynote in Houston "the most unkindest cut of all" was this of the New York World, on the evening edition of which he labors:

"The Democrats under Smith's leadership will not offer the people self-righteousness and partisan criticism. The theory that campaigns should be based on the vices of the other fellow is a theory dear to men who have so little prospect of winning that they have forgotten what campaigns are for."

Smith and Robinson.

That which was predicted before the opening of the big gathering down in Houston early in the week has come to pass. Democracy has chosen Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, as its candidates for president and vice-president respectively at the November election.

Following the lead of the Republicans assembled in convention in Kansas City, Democracy nominated each of its candidates on the first ballot, bringing about a situation, as was deemed probable days ago, unique in the history of American politics.

From its opening until its close, the Houston convention was dominated by the New York governor. His lieutenants were in absolute control. From the first, his nomination was conceded. The convention, without question, indorsed the platform which was written to conform in all essential matters to the ideas and policies he champions. It named as his running-mate the man who is held to have been his choice. The convention is over, and from this time on up to the election in November, Alfred E. Smith will dominate the activities of his party as he did those of the delegates who represented it in Houston.

The gradation of the boy born of humble parentage in New York's East Side from newsboy to clerk in a fish market, to state assemblyman, to head of a large trucking concern, to four-time choice of the people of the first state of the union for their executive, to the candidate of a great political party for the most exalted place at the gift of the nation can not be ascribed to luck or chance. It is not the rise of a mere favorite of fortune. There must be something of real manhood and ability in one who has thus achieved, and we are glad to pay the tribute of our respect and esteem to such achievement.

And the selection of the able Arkansas senator to be his associate in the race must be conceded to be a shrewd one from many viewpoints, not the least of which is the geography of the selection, a clever political play to add strength to the ticket where there is pressing need of it despite the admitted Democracy of the South. A former governor, one of the strong men of his party, a leader in the senate—the vice-presidential selection will be accepted as an evidence of good politics in completion of what is admittedly a strong ticket.

This newspaper is committed to support of the Republican ticket, but it is not because of lack of esteem for the worth of that selected in Houston, but rather because of the fact that the country generally has prospered to a greater extent under Republican administrations than it has under Democratic, and because of our belief that what has held good in the past will hold good in the future, a belief which is especially strong in contemplation of the splendid qualifications of Herbert Hoover to occupy the presidential chair. But while so feeling and believing, we are not so partisan as to be blind to the high worth of Mr. Hoover's opponent.

It was due to recognition of the high character of both of them that we predicted that, if they controlled the campaign, as we expect them to do, it would be on a high level and free from the regrettable blackguardism which has marked some campaigns of the past.

After putting on a series of daredevil stunts, Alfred Fronval, the most famous stunt pilot in France, was killed in making a simple landing, his plane breaking into flames when one of its wings collided with another machine as it touched the ground. Such is fate.

The French chamber of deputies gave Premier Poincare a 420-to-150 vote of confidence when he refused to discuss the subject of the release, demanded by the communists, of two Alsatian red deputies convicted for separatist activities. The awful spectacle presented by the misrule of the reds in Russia manifestly is having its effect the world over in combating communism.

Embarrassing Controversy Ended.

Herbert Hoover acted wisely in bringing to an end the controversy over the inscription to be placed on the new Louvain library, which is to be dedicated July 4, by sending a cablegram to Monsignor Ladeuze, rector of the library, giving full jurisdiction to the university over what inscription is to be placed upon the memorial.

It was the contention of the architect of the structure, Whitney Warren, that the inscription in Latin originally chosen, "Destroyed by German Fury, Restored by American Generosity" should be used. The university authorities held that this would but serve to keep alive the hatreds of the war. So heated became the controversy that students and citizens friendly to the views of the architect destroyed a number of the pillars of the balcony which Monsignor Ladeuze had in readiness to supplant the balcony carrying the inscription following the designs of the architect.

"Representing the donors of a large share of the funds employed in building the library," Mr. Hoover, who is still the head of the Belgian relief committee and one of the largest donors to the library, cabled Monsignor Ladeuze, "I suggest you obtain immediate settlement of the present controversy on lines eliminating war bitterness, reflecting the true spirit of the great educational institution and being in accord with mature public opinion."

The immediate result of the cable was the departure of Architect Warren for Italy leaving the college head in charge, thus ending the controversy which led to the disgraceful acts of vandalism related—a solution which must be welcome to Americans generally and especially to the contributors to the library building fund who, by the proposed inscription, were placed in the attitude of patting themselves upon the back.

It is to be hoped that the entire controversy will be forgotten when the handsome new structure is dedicated next Wednesday, as planned.

Plenty of Minerals.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In the springtime when the chickens were being hatched, all the newspapers carried articles about how to feed the young things. The poultry editor and reporters wrote pages on feeding. "Minerals for the Chicks," "Green Food for the Chicks"—very conceivable bit of advice was printed for the benefit of the poultry raiser.

I applaud this. It speaks well for the enterprise of the newspapers that they print this informative material. It is a sign of progress that the raisers of poultry are eager for the information and follow the instructions.

As I write, I have before me one of these articles. Here is a quotation: "In the care of the chick, if he is to grow to good size, remain vigorous and healthy, and if he is to grow a suitable frame, provide for adequate flesh development, he must have in his diet considerable mineral elements."

Then this sensible writer continues: "Minerals serve two very distinct functions. They are used directly in building bony tissue for the framework of the body. Bone is quite largely lime and phosphorous. In addition, there is a second and even more important function of minerals, and that is to increase the efficiency of the other foods fed."

Here is another wise statement: "There is another function which minerals are assumed to possess, and which is being given more attention, that minerals seem to be able to build up the body, making it able to resist disease and infections of various kinds. An insufficient amount of mineral not only means poorly grown and small stature and incomplete digestion, but the scarcity also means lowered vitality and tendency to disease."

Every word of this statement can be applied to human beings. It is just as true to babies. There must be minerals for the growth of the baby's bones. He must have lime and phosphorous if he is to thrive.

For the same reason, the baby must have minerals to build up resistance to diseases which are watching for a weak place to make attack. Proper food wards off disease.

One of the reasons why milk is such a valuable food for growing children is because it is rich in minerals. It contains sulphur, phosphorous, soda, potash, lime, magnesium, iron and iodine.

The fruits and vegetables carry large percentages of mineral substances. They are necessary additions to the diet of the child.

There is another reason why milk, fruits and vegetables are essential. They contain the mysterious vitamins which have everything to do with growth, health and resistance to disease.

Certainly a baby is just as important as a brood of chicks. Let us use as much scientific care in the feeding of the babies and then we will have a bigger, a healthier and a hardier race.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

A. A. Q.—What is a remedy for dandruff?

A.—I would advise you to shampoo your hair frequently, using a good pure soap and apply a stimulating tonic to the scalp very other night. For full details send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Editorial Comment.

WHY FOREIGNERS STAY HOME.

Coincidentally with the assertion of an American professor that America's restriction of immigration is responsible for Europe's overpopulation comes a statement from a London economist to the effect that England's unemployment is due to America's refusal to admit aliens in large numbers. If these two views did not express a widespread popular delusion they would hardly be worthy of consideration. Unfortunately, many persons here and abroad have made similar charges and so have helped confuse thinking about the movements of peoples. For Americans in particular, to whom the question of immigration has always been of especial significance, it is important to understand clearly the various factors concerned.

Students of population problems agree that emigration per se is no cure for overpopulation. In fact, the proposition has been laid down—perhaps too dogmatically—that every person who emigrates from his home land simply makes it possible for another to take his place. This is but a way of saying that where the pressure of population is acute the food of the emigrant will be promptly eaten by some one else. Only if emigration were possible on an enormous scale would it temporarily alleviate the pressure of population. Even if Italy, for example, were to send abroad each year as many of her sons and daughters as the total excess of births over deaths, the population would not decrease. As a matter of fact, during the years of Europe's greatest export of emigrants to the Americas the population of the lands which sent out the largest numbers continually moved upward.

Leaving aside the debatable question whether national fecundity implies the right of dumping excess citizens on other nations, it is essential to bear in mind that there are large portions of the world where European immigrants are welcomed. Argentina and other South American nations seek new settlers. Canada and Australia have offered special inducements to British subjects to settle within their boundaries, but with only scant success. The assertion that America's restriction policy has kept Englishman at home, to the impoverishment of all concerned, is not founded on reason. In reality, since America's immigration restriction law has gone into effect the English have shown no great anxiety to fill their quota to the limit.

It is, of course, true that the United States has been the particular magnet which drew Europeans from home. But the mere fact that the United States has closed its doors does not mean that Europe's surplus population must remain bottled up and either starve or fight. This is but a specious argument against immigration restriction when there are many more plausible and more sound that may be advanced. Such pretensions in no way help the cause of the anti-restrictionists. Instead, they create international ill-will by saddling America with blame which is not justly here.—New York Times.

HE MIGHT HAVE SET A GOOD EXAMPLE.

It is a disappointment to read that Senator Couzens has asked the supreme court of the District of Columbia to quash the service of a summons in connection with the $500,000 slander suit filed against him by Howe C. Cochran, tax accountant. The remarks to which Mr. Cochran objects, and which are the basis for his suit, were uttered by Mr. Couzens on the floor of the senate, and there is no doubt that they are covered by the constitutional immunities which members of congress enjoy. The senator unquestionably can protect himself from court action by invoking those immunities. But the Free Press had hoped that Mr. Couzens would take a large view, would waive his privilege, and would meet the issue raised by Mr. Cochran on its merits, man to man, citizen to citizen, in court without using any official advantage. Such a course on the part of Mr. Couzens would have been wholesome and courageous, and would have set a precedent for other members of congress which, in view of the growing recklessness of the utterances of certain senators and representatives and the disinclination of congress to call such men to account as it has the power to do, is much needed.—Detroit Free Press.

Dinner Stories.

A thrifty Scotch farmer started off each day by reading a chapter from the Bible to his field hands. One morning during the harvesting season, he struck the sixth chapter of Chronicles, which consists of eighty-one verses of genealogical names. He droned on until he came to:

"And Shallun begat Hilkiah, and Hilkiah begat Azariah, and Azariah begat Seraiah, and Seraiah begat Johozadak."

Then he paused and looked over the leaf.

"Weel, my friends," he said, "they begat ane anither richt down to the end o' the page and a lang way ower on the ither side, so we'll jist leave them to it. Off wi' ye to yer wark."

History.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"After a recent discussion we have decided to refer to you the following questions:

"How long ago was the Stone age, in estimated facts? Was the Babylon civilization before the Egyptian?—Joseph E. Eichel, Cleveland, Ohio."

These questions perhaps do not admit of perfectly definite answers. To begin with, even within the historic period systems of chronology are not sufficiently certain or accordant to enable us to make absolutely trustworthy comparisons; records or monuments are lacking or imperfect, and legends and traditions are seriously affected by racial and national rivalries and jealousies and rendered untrustworthy by the exaggerations of the prevailing imaginative and poetic treatment of such subjects—a fault that is not absent from the modern mind.

Taking your questions in the reverse order, i. e., putting the historic, or semi-historic first, we find that early forms of civilization probably began almost simultaneously in the valley of the Nile in Africa, and that of the Euphrates and the Tigris in the adjacent part of Asia. The Egyptian civilization seems to have been first in attaining a great and consistent form of development, and most historians ascribe to it the primacy in this respect, though it may have been preceded by less widespread and enduring cultures at different points in Asia Minor.

In the days of Sargon, Semiramis, Nebuchanezzar, etc., Babylon, as the capital of the country called Chaldea, had reached a height of splendor that deeply impressed the imagination of the world of that time, and that endured until Alexander conquered the famous city and died in it, in the fourth century before Christ. But, meanwhile, Egypt had developed a civilization on the Nile still more splendid, more varied, more lasting, and more influential over the rest of the world, particularly over the early peoples who later left Greece as their final contribution to the advance of humanity. Upon the whole, I think we may say that Egypt stands at the "gates of the morning" in human history, taking precedence by virtue of the relative continuity of her development though it, too, was subject to many interruptions and variations.

Turning, then, to prehistoric times, which dip down a little way into the gulf of geological time, we may remark that there are two "stone ages" that have been discriminated—the "Old Stone Age" and the "New Stone Age." They get their common name from the fact that the people who dwelt upon the earth in those days made their simple weapons and utensils mostly of flint or other hard, maniable stone. The older of these ages probably began in the course of the glacial periods, of which there were several in succession, with intervening warm eras, extending back for hundreds of thousands of years.

All attempts to express these periods in years are only more or less probable guesses. The geologist's way is to refer them to their place in the order of succession of the eras of the last great geological age—the Quaternary.

The latter stone age, however, is more nearly within the reach of a consistent chronology. It represents a time when the earlier savage types of humanity had advanced to what may be called incipient civilization. Their tools, weapons, etc., now showed a great advance in skill and in the application of thought and foresight. Among them a by no means contemptible degree of art had been developed, as shown by their paintings on cavern walls and their carvings in ivory, bone and horn. They may have lived from 30,000 to 10,000 years ago. They must have known the succession of the years from the return of the seasons, but probably they had no conception of history and no thought of satisfying the curiosity of remote posterity about them.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

Veteran Railroad Employe To End More Than 50 Years of Service With Company

New York Central Officials and Fellow-Employes of E. H. Allen Pay Tribute to Man Who Goes on Company's Pension Roll July 1

Kenton, June 30—A half century and eight years of almost continuous service in railroading, is the unusual distinction enjoyed today by E. H. Allen, veteran employe of the Ohio Central division of the New York Central Lines in Kenton.

The veteran railroader, who in his time has seen many changes and great advancement in practically every phase of railroading, attained his seventieth year June 17 and will go on the pension list July 1.

Officials Pay Tribute

In recognition of his faithfulness and of his never diminishing loyalty to his employers down through the years, high officials of the carrier this morning paid personal tribute to Mr. Allen this morning in appropriate ceremonies at the New York Central shops.

The venerable worker was presented with an easy chair and a smoking outfit by the local employes as well as the employes of the transportation department from Kenton and Columbus.

During his long service, Mr. Allen lost but very little time and established a noteworthy record in the promotion of safety having sustained no injuries of any consequence. Through his genial personality and pleasant disposition he made many friends and was popular with his fellow workers.

Is War Veteran

The veteran was employed at the local shops as hostler and at the time of his retirement will have spent about 24 years and two months in continual service to the carrier. He has been engaged in the railroad business since 12 years of age. Previous to coming to the New York Central he was employed by the Hocking Valley and the C. S. & H. railroads as engineer, hostler and brakeman.

His greatest absence from his work was when he enlisted in the Spanish American war and served his country for 14 months in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.

JUNE MAY BREAK RECORD FOR RAIN

Hardin County Mark of 7.26 Inches in 1909 Is High Mark

Kenton, June 30—Hardin County may set a record for the month of June in the matter of rainfall this month. The greater amount of rainfall for the month of June, listed in the government records at the Frank B. Barce farm, west of the city, is for the year 1909 when 7.26 inches of rainfall was booked. So far this month 6.99 inches have been recorded lacking .27 of an inch to equal the record.

According to statement made by the farmers of the county, the opinion is that there will be no extraordinary damage to the crops if better weather with less rainfall comes soon. However, there is some danger of the oats crop becoming rank, and the corn crop may be hurt if the wet weather keeps up this way. On the coldest day of the month, the low temperature was recorded at 49. The lowest mark for June was recorded in June 1912, at 31. That year the corn crop was frosted and much damage resulted.

MACHINE OVERTURNS

Pennsylvania Woman Sustains Injuries Near Kenton Enroute to Chicago

Kenton, June 30—Recovered from injuries sustained when the automobile in which she was riding skidded off the Harding Highway, ten miles east of here and turned over in the ditch, Mrs. Frank S. Holmes of Turtle Creek, Pa., was dismissed today from the Antonio hospital.

She was taken to the institution Friday evening suffering from cuts on the face and bruises on the shoulder and back.

The husband who was driving the machine when it went into the ditch escaped with slight bruises and scratches.

Mr. and Mrs. Holmes were enroute from their home to Chicago where they intended visiting relatives. Mrs. Holmes was thrown violently against the right front door of the car. The glass windows were shattered.

TEAMS CONSOLIDATE

Kenton Reds and Hardin County League Nine Unite

Kenton, June 30—Consolidation of the Kenton Reds and the Kenton team of the Hardin County League, took place at a meeting of the officials of the two teams Thursday night.

Donald Reese, manager of the league team, will hold the same position after the consolidation, with Joe White, the Reds playing manager, assisting him. Louis Manahan will also act as assistant.

OFFICIALS SEARCH FOR "CON" DOCTORS

Hardin County Farmer Lets Loose of $1,040 for Cure

Kenton, June 30—Officials today are continuing their search for two "con" men who, posing as eye doctors, are alleged to have swindled William Shadley, farmer of near here, out of $1,040.

Professing knowledge of eye trouble from which Shadley had suffered for many weeks, the two men stopped at the farm house and offered to cure the farmer of his illness, officials said. They had learned of Mr. Shadley through a firm from which he had secured his glasses, it was said.

They represented themselves as eye specialists from Buffalo, enroute to Columbus to take care of a patient. To use any of the medicine they said they were carrying from a Buffalo hospital to Columbus patient would require the payment of a stipulated sum, Shadley said he was informed.

The money was paid, alleged medicine was administered and the two "specialists" disappeared. But improvement in Shadley's condition failed to materialize.

BROOKLYN CONCERN PURCHASES PLANT

Purvis & Son Take Over Buildings and Equipment of Bucyrus Firm

Bucyrus, June 30—Employment for at least 50 men was assured, when a Brooklyn firm bought out the Bucyrus Road Machinery Company here.

The new owners will take possession July 10.

W. C. Beer, referee in bankruptcy of the northern district of Ohio federal court, has approved the sale to Edward C. Purvis & Son, Brooklyn, N. Y., for the sum of $52,500 cash.

Purvis & Son are manufacturers of special machinery, including air compressors, weaving machines and engines. Work of remodeling has already begun and the terms of sale, according to Leuthold, who is trustee, contract the remodeling must be completed by July 10.

The plant which has been idle for several years is under a $250,000 mortgage, which is held by the Union Trust Company of Cleveland. The sale of the plant for $52,500 is claimed to involve a loss to investors of approximately half a million dollars with the Union Trust Co. one of the heaviest losers.

The sale of the plant brings to a close one of the most hard fought legal battles in the history of local industry. After the company went into the hands of a receiver, five years ago, employes holding wage claims totaling $7,500, filed action to declare the company bankrupt. The proceedings were fought by the receiver and the case was heard in every state and federal court. It appears today as if the laborers who forced the company into bankruptcy will be unable to collect on their claims for wages.

The industry which looks to be the biggest thing for Bucyrus since the war, will employ from 50 to 200 men, according to a representative from the Purvis Co.

KENTON POLICE TAKE VICTIM IN CHARGE

Mexican Laborer Found in Semi-Conscious Condition in Business Place

SAYS HE WAS ROBBED

Had About $15 in Pockets When Alleged Robbery Takes Place

Kenton, June 30—An alleged victim of robbers and suffering from injuries about the face and head, Tony Relos, Mexican laborer, was taken to police headquarters for medical treatment and questioning late last night.

The man was found in a semi-conscious condition sitting on the floor of the front office of an uptown business establishment and police were notified. He had wandered through the open door of the business room. His eye was cut and swollen and his mouth was bruised and bleeding.

According to the meager information gained from the robber victim, he was struck in the face and felled as he attempted to ward off his attackers. Relos said he about $15 in his pocket when he was robbed.

The man spoke broken English and but little could be gained through questioning him. He was unable to say where the attack occurred.

Officials are of the opinion that Relos might have been injured when he and other Mexican laborers engaged in a fight. An investigation is being made. The man was taken in custody by Patrolman Joe Dempster and Jake Jenkins.

Noble-Moylan Nuptials
At St. Mary's Church

Palms, ferns and garden flowers banked the altar and chancel at St. Mary's Catholic Church for the wedding, at 8 o'clock this morning, of Miss Leona Noble and Lawrence Moylan, of Ottawa, Canada. Rev. Father F. X. Cotter, pastor of the church, solemnized a nuptial high mass.

The bride wore a bouffant taffeta frock with long veil of tulle shaped in cap fashion in a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of Bride's roses and lilies. Miss Kathryn Bingham, as bridesmaid, wore a frock of coral georgette with picture hat and accessories to harmonize. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of roses and blue dephnium. Percy Moylan, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

After the nuptials a wedding breakfast was served to about 25 relatives and friends of the couple at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Noble, Oak st. Mr. and Mrs. Moylan left at noon for Detroit, where they will be at home at 5831 Romeyn av.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included William Moylan of Ottawa, Canada, father of the bridegroom, Percy Moylan, Lawrence McCarthy, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Moylan, and Tom Langdon of Detroit and Carrol and Jack Moylan of Ottawa, Canada.

Just Things

BY EDNA B. DUTTON

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH

It will soon be another glorious Fourth of July, which means another holiday for the tireed business folk, an extra bath for the gas buggy, icecream aplenty for the kiddies, with perhaps some fireworks thrown in. Reminiscing on other Fourth of Julys this week brought to light an incident which happened the first season "punk" came out (in this certain village at least), and this particular incident just about wrecked a whole forenoon for a group of celebrants. Two of the very, very junior members of the party, who as usual had to do all the errands, were sent to purchase the new fangled match saver and after being given a vivid word picture of the article felt they were qualified to carry out instructions. Not being fortunate in getting a regular clerk, and getting one who evidently was making his first sale of the ware, they were unable to make him understand the nature of their purchase. Finally not wishing to go home empty handed one of the purchasing agents saw what she claims she thought was punk and the pair fared forth triumphant. Being pounced on by the financial backers of the purchase on their return, and asked to produce the goods they calmly announced that they had eaten the "punk." After giving a description of their purchase it was pretty well settled in the minds of their brothers and sisters that this particular punk must have come out of the candy case. From that day on the offenders have never admitted whether it was crass ignorance on their part or that they really out-smarted the rest.

HASTY SPEECH

Did you ever notice that just about the time you give expression to your tidy complex and discard some article you have treasured for a flock of blue moons, that you find yourself in direct need of it, or take a dirty fling at something, the first thing you know something happens to it and you learn that it is almost priceless? I've learned my lesson. Some weeks ago in this very column, I cast aspersions on our one and only town clock. Made the bold statement that one pair of its hands didn't know what the other three pairs were doing, and cared less, and hinted that it wouldn't be a bad idea to start a fund to pension absent minded clocks. And right away something happened. I sensed that something was wrong the minute I started down town on that morning and when I got to the corner where I could gaze into the face of my old friend and advisor, I discovered what it was. I had no idea how long I dared linger over the morning paper or how much time I might have to flatten my nose against the shop windows. And at noon when I had only so much time for lunch before catching a car, where, oh where, was there a clock with a face I could trust? Never again will I, and I dare any one else to speak with anything but respect about the town clock. In fact I am ready to apologize to the old fellow.

JUNE

June, the calendar's favorite child is bidding us adieu and I've failed to meet any one as yet who is inconsolable at her departure. She certainly has behaved like a flock of spoiled youngsters, in fact I think the most indulgent parent would have wielded the paddle long ere this. She ought to have a permanent drag with the umbrella and raincoat industry for she sure spread honey for them, but her reputation isn't worth a gosh dern with the brides and garden party hostesses.

THE YEAR'S MOST BAFFLING SERIAL STORY

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

CHAPTER 31

SAID nothing, and after a moment, Mrs. Cavendish went on:

"Don't misunderstand me. I was quite honest with him. I told him, what was true, that I liked him very much, that I hoped to come to like him more, but that I was not in any way what the world calls 'in love' with him. He declared that that satisfied him, and so—we were married."

She waited a long time, a little frown had gathered on her forehead. She seemed to be looking back earnestly into those past days.

"I think—I am sure—he cared for me at first. But I suppose we were not well matched. Almost at once, we drifted apart. He—it is not a pleasing thing for my pride, but it is the truth—tired of me very soon." I must have made some murmur of dissent, for she went on quickly: "Oh, yes, he did! Not that it matters now—now that we've come to the parting of the ways."

"What do you mean?"

She answered quietly:

"I mean that I am not going to remain at Styles."

"You and John are not going to live here?"

"John may live here, but I shall not."

"You are going to leave him?"

"Yes."

"But why?"

She paused a long time, and said at last:

"Perhaps—because I want to be—free!"

And, as she spoke, I had a sudden vision of broad spaces, virgin tracts of forests, untrodden lands—and a realization of what freedom would mean to such a nature as Mary Cavendish. I seemed to see her for a moment as she was, a proud wild creature, as untamed by civilization as some shy bird of the hills. A little cry broke from her lips:

"You don't know, you don't know, how this hateful place has been prison to me!"

"I understand," I said, "but—but don't do anything rash."

"Oh, rash!" Her voice mocked at my prudence.

Then suddenly I said a thing I could have bitten out my tongue for:

"You know that Dr. Bauerstein has been arrested?"

An instant coldness passed like a mask over her face, blotting out all expression.

"John was so kind as to break that to me this morning."

"Well, what do you think?" I asked feebly.

"Of what?"

"Of the arrest?"

"What should I think? Apparently he is a German spy; so the gardener had told John."

Her face and voice were absolutely cold and expressionless. Did she care, or did she not?

She moved away a step or two, and fingered one of the flower vases.

"These are quite dead. I must do them again. Would you mind moving—thank you, Mr. Hastings." And she walked quietly past me out of the window, with a cool little nod of dismissal.

No, surely she could not care for Bauerstein. No woman could act her part with that icy unconcern.

Poirot did not make his appearance the following morning, and there was no sign of the Scotland Yard men.

But, at lunch-time, there arrived a new piece of evidence—or rather lack of evidence. We had vainly tried to trace the fourth letter which Mrs. Inglethorp had written on the evening preceding her death. Our efforts having been in vain, we had abandoned the matter, hoping that it might turn up of itself one day. And this is just what did happen, in the shape of a communication, which arrived by the second post from a firm of French music publishers, acknowledging Mrs. Inglethorp's check, and regretting they had been unable to trace a certain series of Russian folk-songs. So the last hope of solving the mystery, by means of Mrs. Inglethorp's correspondence on the fatal evening, had to be abandoned.

Just before tea, I strolled down to tell Poirot of the new disappointment, but found, to my annoyance, that he was once more out.

"Gone to London again?"

"Oh, no, monsieur, he has but taken the train to Tadminster. 'To see a young lady's dispensary,' he said."

"Silly ass!" I ejaculated. "I told him Wednesday was the one day she wasn't there! Well, tell him to look us up tomorrow morning, will you?"

"Certainly, monsieur."

But, on the following day, no sign of Poirot. I was getting angry. He was really treating us in the most cavalier fashion.

After lunch, Lawrence drew me aside, and asked if I was going down to see him.

"No, I don't think I shall. He can come up here if he wants to see us."

"Oh!" Lawrence looked indeterminate. Something unusually nervous and excited in his manner roused my curiosity.

"What is it?" I asked. "I could go if there's anything special."

"It's nothin much, but—well, if you are going, will you tell him—" he dropped his voice to a whisper—"I think I've found the extra coffee-cup!"

I had almost forgotten that enigmatical message of Poirot's, but now my curiosity was aroused afresh.

Lawrence would say no more, so I decided that I would descend from my high horse, and once more seek out Poirot at Leastways Cottage.

This time I was received with a smile. Monsieur Poirot was within. Would I mount? I mounted accordingly.

Poirot was sitting by the table, his head buried in his hands. He sprang up at my entrance.

"What is it?" I asked solicitously. "You are not ill, I trust?"

"No, no, not ill. But I decide an affair of great moment."

'Whether to catch the criminal or not?" I asked facetiously.

But, to my great surprise, Poirot nodded gravely.

"'To speak or not to speak,' as your so great Shakespeare says, 'that is the question.'"

I did not trouble to correct the quotation.

"You are not serious, Poirot?"

"I am of the most serious. For the most serious of all things hangs in the balance."

"And that is?"

"A woman's happiness, mon ami," he said gravely.

I did not quite know what to say.

"The moment has come," said Poirot thoughtfully, "and I do not know what to do. For, see you, it is a big stake for which I play. No one but I, Hercule Poirot, would attempt it!" And he tapped himself proudly on the breast.

After pausing a few minutes respectfully, so as not to spoil his effect, I gave him Lawrence's message.

"Aha!" he cried. "So he has found the extra coffee-cup. That is good. He has more intelligence than would appear, this long-faced Monsieur Lawrence of yours!"

I did not myself think very highly of Lawrence's intelligence; but I forebore to contradict Poirot, and gently took him to task for forgetting my instructions as to which were Cynthia's days off.

"It is true. I have the head of a sieve. However, the other young lady was most kind. She was sorry for my disappointment, and showed me everything in the kindest way."

"Oh, well, that's all right, then, and you must go to tea with Cynthia another day."

I told him about the letter.

"I am sorry for that," he said. "I always had hopes of that letter. But, no, it was not to be. This affair must all be unravelled from within." He tapped his forehead. "These little grey cells. It is 'up to them'—as you say over here." Then, suddenly, he asked: "Are you a judge of fingermarks, my friend?"

"No," I said, rather surprised. "I know that there are no two fingermarks alike, but that's as far as my science goes."

"Exactly."

"Anyone Can Achieve the Freedom of a Financial Competence by Middle Age"

He further says, in regard to savings and investments:

"You want to know that your principal will be safe and that you will get a fair return on your money.

"You can do that. Go to the best banker you know for advice.

"Any young man or woman can achieve the freedom of a financial competence by early middle age. Many workmen and laborers employed in factories have accumulated small fortunes by the time they were forty. And they have not had to live meanly or niggardly.

"You are young but once; middle age is not repeated and old age is a one-way street.

"Enjoy the comforts and pleasures which belong to each period, but think of them all.

"You can't expect freedom from worry in middle age if during youth you are prodigal.

The Heart Story of a Womans Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

A Silent Duel for Love Begins

AS Princess Olina of Transvania finished her laughing question as to Mary's escort upon her outing I voluntarily straightened in my chair at something in her voice which to me, knowing her story, was like a reading upon a thermometer.

I was sure that our lovely royal visitor, who was still Miss Eleanor Lincoln in the minds of all but a few of us, did not herself realize the significance of the tremolo in her voice when she said that Mary's absence "explained the activities of our friend, Mr. Jackson," adding that she had telephoned that picturesque youth, asking him to come over and play a game of tennis only to be given the excuse of a luncheon engagement. But it verified in my mind a suspicion which I had harbored for several weeks the conjecture that Olina, despite her infatuation for Noel Veritzen was still interested enough in her former suitor, Prince Georges of Trees, now supposed to be plain George Logan Jackson, to be distinctly jealous of him.

The confirming of my suspicion was a distinct fillip to the determination I had formed to do everything in my power to foil Philip Veritzen's fantastic plan of fostering a marriage between his son and the lovely princess of Transvania, whose equally beautiful mother had held the hopeless adoration of my employer's tragic youth.

If I succeeded in that I knew I should also be able to thwart the patent purpose of young Prince Georges to marry Mary, tossing his royal rank aside as if it were a worn-out toy. To my eyes, I must confess, it had no more value than a toy, but I could guess what their heritage would mean to Olina and Georges when their present infatuations should have cooled, and knew that no real happiness could ever come of such ill-mated pairing.

But it was not altogether an impersonal belief in the wisdom of breaking up the attachments which prompted the phrasing of my answer to Olina's question. Of all four of the picturesque quartet my sympathies were with Noel Veritzen, for his emotions were the most sincere and he was suffering most. I had seen him wince as Olina voiced her belief that young Mr. Jackson had been Mary's escort, and the look in his eyes made me stretch the truth until it was hopelessly out of shape.

"Yes, Mr. Jackson was the god of the machine—literally"—I told her, "for he has traded his car in for a wonderfully good-looking roadster. I really was quite provoked at Mary, for I almost had to compel her to go. I should fancy that a handsome young man and a car equally attractive would be a combination to tempt any young woman but Mary is an odd fish. She simply begged me to let her stay at home and help take care of Junior to whom she is devoted. But I made her go, for as I said before, she really needed the outing."

I salved my conscience with the remembrance that Mary really had asked me to let her stay and help me take care of Junior. But I was also aware that no such reluctance tinged her acceptance of my dictum that she go as I just had pictured. But I justified my exaggeration when I saw the involuntary joyous flash of relief in Noel Veritzen's eyes as he turned them on me. And I am afraid I took an equal but malicious satisfaction in seeing the chagrined look which Olina could not wholly disguise and the quick narrowing of Philip Veritzen's eyebrows which told me that my chatter had been as unwelcome to him as it was to Princess Olina.

Nothing could have so plainly proved his ruthless determination to carry out this plan of marrying Noel to Olina. He had chosen Mary as a dramtic protegee with the announced intention of making her the most famous star he ever had trained. I knew the rigid routine upon which he insisted. Yet he was evincing distinct displeasure at her reluctance to accept the attentions of a young man, something usually forbidden to his protegees. And when a few minutes later Prince Georges' car whirled into the driveway and its royal occupant followed Mary up the steps I saw Phillip Veritzen's eyes go from the girl to his son, in watchful speculation, and felt a sudden desire to call out "On guard!" to both of them.

A Little Talk Over Lumber

With us may save you both money and annoyance. We can prove that it pays to buy good lumber even for a chicken house. We can prove our lumber is good either by showing it to you if you are an expert or by referring you to previous buyers from us, if you are not. When we have proved both these propositions, the rest is up to you.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

Today was Saturday. When I had let Jubilee down and had dressed and milked and strained the milk and was feeding my face and watching out to slip something into my pocket for Jubilee, everyone was talking about snakes and my father said that probly the snakes we got was not poison snakes, and my grandfather said that they probaly was, because they had wide heads and stumpy tails and I said then Jubilee must be poison, and they all laughed.

My grandfather said that down south where he fit and won the war there is snakes called moccacins that live in the water, and they are very poisonous, but he said he don't know of any snakes this far north that are poison but it is a good plan to let snakes and mushrooms and women alone, because you can never tell what might happen. My ant kinda snorted at him and he said, "Now what is the matter with you, I wasn't referring to you." My ant said "You said it was a good plan to let women alone." "Oh," my grandfather said, "I meant ladies." And then he went on to talk about snakes and she shut her mouth like a snapping turkle. My grandfather says any snake is liable to be poisonous, but the snakes with diamond shaped heads and stumpy tails are almost always poisonous, and then he said to me to keep away from them. He don't want a fella to have any fun at all.

I put my turkle in the cistern when my mother made me bury the snakes and I was going to throw it all the dead chickens and cats and stuff I could find so that it would grow to be the bigest turkle ever in captivity. So when I had milked and everything and the bunch was all there I took the cover off the cistern and looked in to see if I could see him paddling around, and I had to put my head down into the cistern quite a ways so my eyes would get accusomed to the dark when someone said, "Let me see can't you?" and someone got hold of my elbows and pulled my arms up so my hands left the ground and I went into the cistern head first like a toad into a pond. I'll bet wherever my turkle was he thought a sockdolager of a turkle was coming to visit him. The bunch let down the cistern pole, and I took hold of it and got pulled out. Feeble was looking at me cross-eyed and said; "Oh, I'm so sorry, Thomas Aristides. I didn't think pulling your arms back would make you fall in." I said, "The trouble with you is you haven't got anything to think with. I expect you thought my ears would keep me from falling in!" and she said she hadn't thought that, but that it was a wonder they hadn't. Sometimes it is a shame that no fella must strike a lady unless she is his sister or something.
